

Name Schneck, Lutz to Authority

By BETTY RICE

The Warren County Commissioners yesterday named two Warren men to serve on the proposed regional airport authority. Appointed were John W. Lutz, controller for Sylvania Electric Products Inc., and LeRoy W. Schneck, program director for Northern Allegheny Broadcasting Co.

Commissioners D. H. Lay and Lewis L. Crippen will serve as alternates on the authority which will include four representatives from McKean County, two from Elk and one from Crawford.

The 1967 budget contains $10,000 toward this county's share in the proposed regional airport at Mt. Alton. Crippen, upon being questioned by Blain M. Mead as to an increase in the county share (last quoted as $51,000 over a five-year period) said the commissioners are waiting for a final and new agreement which is being prepared before making a motion to approve Warren's actual cash participation.

The commissioners in regular session yesterday passed a resolution to be sent to Craig Truax, secretary of the Commonwealth, that counties be reimbursed for the excessive cost anticipated in advertising the ponderous eight proposed amendments to the state constitution and the constitutional convention referendum which are to appear on the May 16 primary election ballot.

Mead advised the Pennsylvania State Association of County Commissioners currently has a bill before the Legislature that would make the state assume the financial burden for this type of advertising.

In other business brought before the official meeting, Mead called for a full federal investigation of the local "war on poverty" and charged that "an examination of the books of the local Office of Economic Opportunity indicates it cost the taxpayers about 66 cents to give away a dollar in federal funds."

Mead claimed $23,699.80 has been spent on salaries, office expense and other administrative costs to give away $33,039.72 to two school districts. Among the figures listed by the commissioner was a $440.85 phone bill plus about $1,300 in travel expenses for past and present staff members.

It was also noted, however, the county's actual share in the expenses was small—about $1,000 in cash and office space, light and heat.

A motion by Mead to have the office investigated and the county to withdraw entirely from the project died for lack of a second.

The commissioners also approved a letter to be sent to John Hanna Jr., president of Warren Housing Inc., pledging the full support of all three commissioners in the low cost housing for the elderly program now under way.

CONTRACTS TO BE FOR 12 MONTHS

Teachers Held Full Year

OIL CITY—Teachers of Oil City Area School District will work a full 12 months for their annual salaries, the school board has directed.

The unprecedented move cuts the three-month summer vacation for teachers and "raises them to full professional status," the school board said. Annual salaries will be increased to offset the loss in vacation time. Dr. H. Virgil Grumbling, schools superintendent, said following the afternoon meeting Wednesday.

Administrative personnel in most school districts work on a 12-month basis, but teachers are contracted for 185 days. The new Oil City policy calls for 230 days. The new salary schedule goes into effect on July 1, 1967, and calls for all teachers to sign 12-month contracts by July 1, 1968.

Under the new contract policy and contract schedule, teachers now receiving the minimum of $4,700 per year will receive $6,900 per year. The increase is proportional through all steps of the salary schedule.

For example, a teacher in the 10th year would receive $9,800. Teachers with masters' degrees will start at $7,000 and in 10 years will be earning $10,200 under the present schedule.

The salaries next year will be substantially higher than that, however, because a new schedule was to go into effect next fall. Minimum was to have been $5,200 for new teachers. Teachers who do not wish to sign a 12-month contract for next school year will be paid under the schedule with the $5,200 minimum.

During the summer months, teachers will be employed by the district in six possible ways:

1. As teachers in the summer educational program;
2. As playground supervisors in the summer recreational program;
3. In research, under the direction of department heads and other supervisory personnel;
4. For planning to develop better educational programs and curricula;
5. For in-service training;
6. And for attending colleges and universities for work on advanced degrees and courses related to teaching fields.

Those choosing to attend colleges and universities probably will be limited to attending every other year. Teachers will not be allowed to become professional students.

Some teachers will be allowed to take the summer months off, in a manner similar to policies on college faculties. In that situation, some professors teach while others devote themselves to preparing for the teaching year ahead.

Some advantages of the new system pointed out by the administration were:

+ Easier recruitment of new teachers by making the salaries competitive with almost any school district in the nation;

+ The pay schedule and program will be consistent with the state's new vocational-technical education program;

+ Its contribution to the professional status of the teacher;

+ Expansion of the summer school programs and perhaps the adult education programs;

+ It permits year-round use of all school facilities, which are empty and unused for one-fourth of the year;

+ It paves the way in the development of a longer and more useful school year for students, a matter of increasing concern in the growing demands made by expanding technology and the complex problems of today's society.

The new salary schedule and 12-month contract policy caught most teachers flat-footed, but they were in general agreement that it had more advantages than disadvantages, Robert Hall, president of the Oil

City Area Education Association, gave the plan "whole-hearted support" and said it puts the teacher "more in line with other professional people, such as engineers and lawyers."

One school official, in voting for the plan, said it removes the teacher from a part-time worker status to a full-time employee.

IT'S NOT SMALL CHANGE

All in the week's work for borough police officers in the meter collection operation. Teams of two—in this case officers Edward E. Peterson and Dennis Schneider—roll the coin boxes to the municipal meters and tap the contents. The pennies, nickels, dimes and in some instances, quarters, are returned to the borough building for counting. The yield this week was $524.18 from on-street facilities and $214.06 from parking lots. (Photo by Mansfield)

AT LWV CONVENTION

Lt. Gov. Broderick Urges Reform Votes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick said yesterday revision of Pennsylvania's constitution can be completed by April, 1968, if the voters approve a constitutional convention in the primary next month.

Broderick told the convention of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters that approval of the constitutional convention and eight constitutional amendments would result in a new constitution in one year.

Piecemeal revision of the constitution, he said, would require two to three years.

He predicted the constitutional convention proposal would be approved when the people realize they may accept or reject proposed changes.

Before Broderick's speech, league delegates wound up convention business by voting for continued support of complete revision of the state's constitution.

The delegates also voted to: . . . Support maintenance of an efficiently organized Department of Health and a merit system for administrative, technical and professional personnel, and the establishment of county and multi-county health units.

. . . Support a fiscal program for public education which ensures an equal opportunity for every child in the Commonwealth to receive an education which, as a minimum, meets established standards of adequacy.

League officers elected without opposition were:

Mrs. Robert Farlow, New Hope, Bucks County, president; Mrs. E. R. Bellows, Glenshaw, first vice president; Mrs. John Yurchance, Radnor, second vice president; Mrs. Doris Latshaw, Bethlehem, third vice president; Mrs. Eric W. Springer, Pittsburgh, secretary; and Mrs. John Jensen, Mount Lebanon, treasurer.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

The Pennsylvania Railroad's luck this spring is nothing short of phenomenal. They have had derailments in Warren, Kane, Johnstown, and Corry—to name just a few in the past two weeks.

The one in Johnstown was a real dilly. Twenty cars were spread around the place from two trains that derailed simultaneously.

Now it's important, I think, to remember that there hasn't been anyone seriously injured in these mishaps and the only property damage has been to railroad equipment.

How does this come about?, one might ask. Why should derailments reach epidemic proportions now, of all times? Without clearcut answers, one can only imagine what one will; and at that juncture, I always try to picture a conversation that might tie everything together in some form of conspiracy. Take the board of directors of Pennsylvania Railroad, for example.

"Gentlemen, I have an announcement of great import to us all. For the first time in more than two decades, it looks as though the railroad will show a profit for the operating year." This is greeted by stunned silence, broken only by the slow breathing of the traffic engineer.

"I don't have to tell you, of course, what this means. Our plan to merge with New York Central is nearly clear of the Supreme Court and a profitable year is liable to jeopardize it beyond redemption."

"I thought we solved that problem long ago," someone speaks up. "I told you we should have left the passenger trains running through Warren to meet this kind of emergency."

"Well, it's too late to worry about that now. Gentlemen, this calls for emergency measures. You all know what to do. Report to the traffic engineer after this meeting for briefing; we need a lot of little, non-serious accidents."

Of course, that's all hypothetical, but all those derailments make you wonder. It's a heck of a way to run a railroad.

BLOOD COLLECTIONS SHORT OF QUOTA

Donors flocked into the Red Cross Chapter headquarters and the bloodmobile at Warren State Hospital yesterday in an effort to collect 200 pints of blood to replace depleted reserves. In the foreground is officer Charles Musante of the borough police force.

The nurse is Miss V. Whitmire, RN, who worked at the Chapter House. The Warren State Hospital accounted for 73 pints with 7 rejects; the Chapter House collected 80 pints with 6 rejects. (Photo by Mansfield)

Warren Woman Arrested in Thefts

Borough police officers yesterday solved a larceny case and pointed to a woman accused of stealing 85 sets of earrings at Jamesway on November 25, 1966.

Sgt. Donald E. Fitch at 11 a.m. yesterday arrested Frances Marie Cross, 23, of 37 Glade ave. and charged her with larceny. The charge, police said, stemmed from the theft of a Timex wrist watch from Rudolph's Market at 520 Conewango ave. on February 14 of this year.

Fitch said the Warren woman was originally suspected of the theft and additional information obtained Wednesday led Fitch to obtain a search warrant. The sergeant, with officer James Neall, went to the Cross residence where they found the watch, valued at $13.90 and $50 worth of fishing tackle.

Police also found a tray containing 85 pair of gold earrings in all shapes, sizes and types of stones, valued at $420. Last November, the entire display case was taken from the top of a Jamesway jewelry counter, removed to another part of the store, emptied and hidden under a counter. State police trooper William Timmins was called to the Cross home when the earrings were discovered. He is continuing that part of the investigation since the incident occurred out of the borough.

The Cross woman was arraigned before Police Justice Martha Lawson on the local larceny charge and ordered to make restitution and pay costs and a fine.

Breakfast Briefs

Help Build Airport

When a visitor steps off an airplane at the Seutula airport in Helsinki, Finnish friends are apt to ask not how the flight was but "How was the landing?" The reason is simple: The airport was built by drunken drivers. Finnish drunken driving laws are among the strictest anywhere and first offenders almost always wind up on airport and roadbuilding crews. The typical sentence for first drunk driving is four months and can be as high as eight years for causing a death.

Traffic Safety

To many people the traffic safety problem seems hopelessly complex. As a result they disregard as unimportant the simple things that make for safe driving. The extent to which all drivers follow safety rules will determine how rapidly the toll of pain, suffering and sorrow is reduced.

Firemen's Course

All members of volunteer fire departments are invited to attend a radio procedures school Wednesday at the Glade fire hall. The course is slated to begin at 8 p.m. Participants should have a tape recorder and a pencil and tablet.

Motorist Cited

Corry city police on Tuesday cited Chester T. Bailey, 30, of Bear Lake for running a traffic signal at North Center and Bond sts. Information on the charge was filed with Alderman Porter Auer.

FISH FRY FOR FISHERMEN FRIDAY! And how's that for alliteration? Today fishermen from all over a wide area will begin pouring in to camps and motels for the fishing season which opens as Saturday dawns. Thinking of this, the C. D. of A. Court De La Roque, Sheffield, has planned this special event for their pleasure and convenience. The C. D. of A.'s hunters dinners in the autumn of the year have been so successful that they reasoned, why not treat the fishermen too? So, this is the first of what is to become an annual event. It will be held at St. Paul's Center, Saybrook; adults $1.50, children under 12 only 75 cents. Serving will be from 4 to 8 p. m., with takeouts limited to 4 to 6 p. m. The C. D. of A. hastens to emphasize that all are invited to their fish fry, not just fishermen!

UNITS OF THE WARREN COUNCIL PTA are urged to have at least two representatives present on Thursday, April 20th at 8 p. m., at the meeting featuring a talk on "Vocational and Technical Schools For Warren County". Speakers will be Frank Christy, director of Pupil Personnel Service For Warren County School System, and, Curtis Sasserson on "Vocational and Technical Schools For Warren County". The meeting will be hosted by the North Warren Elementary School.

"FEATHERS, FUR AND FLOWERS" — That is the title of the family style evening of pleasure and knowledge planned for Tuesday evening, April 18th, at 7:30 by the YWCA, and, to be held in the YWCA. It will be a program of color and beauty with Charles Neel, who is a nationally recognized authority on native birds of America, narrating, and illustrating his topic with breathtakingly beautiful slides. (I have been told that Mr. Neel has his own bird sanctuary somewhere around the Saybrook area.) Well, this is one evening that neither age nor youth should offer any limitations of interest — The very young will be held by the brilliant pictures, and the more mature school children, as well as parents and other adults, will enjoy both the slides and the interesting commentary of Mr. Neel. Admissions are 50 cents for adults, and all children free if accompanied by an adult.

OPEN CHURCH WILL BE OBSERVED TOMORROW for the wedding of Cynthia Mae Connolly and Steven Rock at Holy Redeemer Church at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Father Julius Kubinyi, pastor of St. Michael's Byzantine Rite Catholic Church in Sheffield will officiate. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Connolly of Warren, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Rock of Warren.

And, another tomorrow afternoon at Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church when Barbara Raleigh and Richard Thomson exchange their wedding vows. Barbara is the daughter of Mr. J. Alan Raleigh and Mrs. Ronald W. Karr of Warren; Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Thomson of Warren. Their nuptial service will begin at 2 o'clock.

THE ENGAGEMENT OF WINNIFRED PARK to James R. Kilby has been announced by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Park of Clarendon Heights. The groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hulin Kilby of 1808 Mary Jean avenue, Orlando, Florida. The wedding will take place on June 29th in Holden Heights Methodist Church, Orlando, at 7:30 p. m.

MINIATURES: North Warren PTA meets on Monday with home-room visitation at 7:30 and the meeting at 8 p. m. "Horizons of Technical Education" by Howard Thompson, first grade mothers will serve refreshments.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you said, "This Is the Year of the Ear." You were responding to a reader who was questioning the wisdom of piercing her ears.

I would like to correct you, Madame. This is really "The Year of the Rear." I am an attorney who is normally mild-mannered and slow to anger, but the revolting appearance of broad-beamed women in too tight and too short skirts has moved me to write my first letter to a newspaper.

It is bad enough to view these females coming, but to watch them GOING is too great a burden on males who must observe the spectacle. If a woman is not aware of the grotesque picture she presents, why doesn't her best friend tell her? Please rush your answer, I am sinking fast. — GOGGLED EYED

DEAR GOG: Because her best friend is probably wearing a skirt that is too tight and too short also and thinks she is a knockout.

I have said it before and I'll say it again. Mid-knee should be the limit for a woman over 30 — yes, even if she has a figure that would shatter a glass eye at forty paces. What some women consider high style is actually low taste. A skirt that is too tight and too short can make a woman appear ludicrous.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The high school is a 20-minute walk from our home. There are no buses out here. The problem is our 16-year-old son. I'm in a car pool with a neighbor whose daughter is 14 (same age as our daughter). I drive the girls one week and the neighbor drives them the next. Our son is welcome to ride along but he refuses to ride with the girls. He insists that my husband drop him off on his way back to work.

This morning it was raining and my husband was behind schedule. The neighbor was out in front but our son refused her offer of a ride. He said he would wait for his father. I blew my top and said he was too demanding. My husband took the boy's side, said he was shy and I shouldn't force him.

This "shy" boy has been going to teen dances, doing the monkey and the jerk for almost two years. Please referee this battle, Ann. — FIGHT FIGHT FIGHT

DEAR FIGHT: Unless your son is handicapped he should walk to school, and this goes for your 14-year-old daughter as well.

Chauffeur service for able-bodied children is part of the "Spoiled Kid Syndrome" which promotes laziness and a lack of initiative.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever a letter that belittles women appears in your column, my husband hands it to me and says, "Ann Landers is sure a smart dame."

I know I'm not perfect but you don't help any by printing all those letters that make women look foolish. Don't tell me "If the shoe fits wear it." I have heard all your smart cracks at least twice. Who named you The Brain Queen of 1967? — SICK OF YOU

DEAR SICK: So far, only your husband, but that's enough for now.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

'Vietnam' Program Subject For Medical Society Meeting

The speaker for the monthly meeting of the Warren County Medical Society will be Dr. Ronald Simonsen, whose subject will be "My Impressions of Vietnam". He will accompany his talk with numerous slides taken during the year he served in that country as a member of a medical team whose purpose was to care for Vietnamese civilians.

The meeting will take place at the Penn Laurel at 4:30 p. m. next Tuesday, April 18. The program and meeting to be followed by a dinner served in the private dining room.

Dr. Simonsen was stationed at a Special Forces Camp about ten miles from the Cambodian border; there he helped to operate a small provincial hospital, frequently traveling to remote mountain villages by helicopter and armored personnel carrier to administer aid.

A graduate of Warren High School, Dr. Simonsen took his pre-medical studies at the University of Pittsburgh. He graduated from Temple University School of Medicine, in Philadelphia, and was then commissioned Captain, U.S.A.F. After his internship at Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland, Dr.

DR. RONALD SIMONSEN

Simonsen spent two and one half years at the Pittsburgh AFB, N. Y., going from there to Vietnam in November 1965 and remaining until October 1966.

The physician is now practicing in Warren and is a member of the Warren County Medical Society, and of the Warren General Hospital staff of doctors.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

A Worry Free Wardrobe

Are you a girl with wardrobe worries, frantic because you "haven't a thing to wear"? Do you show up late for dates because of "dressing decisions"?

You're not alone. Many, many, many are in that same "no-clothes" boat. Building a working wardrobe takes the same enthusiasm, long-range foresight and good taste as planning a dream trip...or creating a beautiful building.

Your wardrobe is the foundation of a total look, as important to your image as a good foundation is to a skyscraper. Use these touchstones as a blueprint for an always "best-dressed" look.

Don't Go To Extremes: It's nice to know what's in with hemlines, colors, silhouettes, even designers. But don't confuse what's in with what's on — what you put on to look your best. Work in the fashion smashes only where they work for you. Study the classics for true planning...then dress them up with fashionwise accessories.

Simplicity Symbolizes Success: The most startling items—neon earrings, pink lace stockings, a chartreuse shift—belong on a stage or on a runway, not on your back. Let simplicity be your keynote. Don't buy clothes that say "Hey, look me over." You might end up being overlooked.

Put Yourself Together By Planning Ahead: Before you go on a shopping spree determine what you have, then figure out what you need and how it will go with what you have.

Vote for Appropriate Apparel: Unless your entire life consists of going to parties and dances, that extra-expensive black chiffon is going to be wasted. You can't wear it to a football game or movie date. Clothes must fit the occasion and your total way of life. There's no point in drooling over what a film star wears to a preview if you need an outfit to wear to school.

A Closetful of Clothes: Who needs it? Very few people! What you do need are clothes that do the most for you. It's a question of quality, not quantity. If you're clever at adding and subtracting, you'll be well on the way to multiplying your wardrobe.

Choose a few good timeless basics in beige or black, gray or navy.

Select go-everywhere fabrics. Jerseys and knits are appropriate year-round; the wools are fine for winter; silks go round the clock in warmer seasons.

Add scarves or jewelry appropriate to the occasion. No one will know it's the same dress.

The Favored Few: Models who wear literally thousands of outfits each year usually have only a few favorites but always manage to look smashing. It's fun to be female and own a lot of pretty clothes, but a closet full of fluff doesn't add up to fashion.

A wardrobe is a collection of clothes you love, in colors and styles that make you feel happy, look pretty. But chiefly it's a collection of clothes you wear. In the final scale of things, the outfits you wear the least cost you the most.

Be a scheming female when it comes to choosing new clothes and casting off old ones. If you bypass a little dreaming for a lot of realism you can't help being a "best-dressed" NEW YOU.

JUST FOR YOU: Before purchasing, give a wardrobe addition the once over. Is it lined so that the back won't bag? Are seams well stitched? Buttons, snaps, hooks and eyes secure? If the answer is "No," look further!

Hints From Heloise

Plastic Lid Uses

DEAR HELOISE

This particular letter concerns plastic lids—the kind found on coffee cans, shortening, dog food, baby food cans, etc.

Never throw plastic lids away! Try them first on your bowls, jelly glasses, and water bottles.

I find that the three pound shortening and two-pound coffee lids fit exactly on my small soup bowls.

With a wax crayon, I mark the contents on the lids before storing leftovers in the small bowls in the refrigerator—sometimes stacking them to save space.

The wax markings wash off easily and they are ready for the next leftovers.

I also snap a plastic lid on an opened can before placing them in the refrigerator for storing.

The three pound shortening and two pound coffee can lids snap on a pint size syrup can. Also dog food lids fit the tops of canned condensed or evaporated milk and chocolate syrup etc.

Just look around the kitchen and try these lids on everything. It will surprise you how many containers they fit and how many new uses you'll find for them.

Mrs. Betty Golbow

DEAR HELOISE

We live in a very large subdivision and are striving for privacy.

I put nylon net behind each of my bedroom drapes. During the day when the drapes are open the nylon net covers the windows thus making them private.

I can see out perfectly but others can't see in unless a light is on in the room.

Linda Colbert

DEAR HELOISE

Have you or your readers ever tried French fried sweet potatoes?

I prepare and fry the raw sweet potatoes the same as I do white spuds.

Lucille Schimp

I don't think many people know that sweet potatoes can be French fried, but they can instead of sprinkling mine with salt, I use sugar. Minnam' Heloise

After dinner poems were read by Mrs. Ruby Cook, Mrs. Betty Pees and Mrs. Laura Farnsworth. A comedy act was presented by Hause and his Sambo. Marian Smock, State Trustee of Meadville was the guest of honor. A sunshine basket was presented to Wilma Cook who was recently hospitalized.

An officers' meeting is to be held this coming Monday, April 17, at 7:30. On Tuesday evening, the regular meeting with the nomination of officers will be called to order at 8 o'clock.

Youth Missionary Special Program

The Youth Fellowship of Youngville Methodist Church will be the guests of the Youth Fellowship of Grace Methodist Church on Sunday evening at 6:30. The occasion will be a special missionary program with Miss Gloria Knappenberger of Franklin, the speaker. Miss Knappenberger will show slides and speak concerning a church work camp she attended in Haiti during Christmas vacation. The Franklin High School senior is the granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Knappenberger of Linwood street.

Everyone is welcome to attend the meeting which will be held in Fellowship Hall of Grace Methodist Church.

Banquet Planned At Pittsfield

A Mother-Daughter Banquet will be held in Wesley Woods on Tuesday, April 25, at 6 p.m., sponsored by the Pittsfield EUB Church.

Guest speaker for the affair will be Mrs. Richard Crosby of North Clymer, New York. Entertainment will be a special fashion show with the styles of an earlier era being shown. Tickets for the turkey dinner are $2 for adults and $1 for those under 12. All reservations must be in by Tuesday, April 18. They may be made by calling Mrs. W. George Spinks, Mrs. C. W. Holcomb, or Mrs. Deway Long.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠ South, the declarer at four spades, handled his assets in a very loose fashion, and when he ran into adverse distribution in both major suits, his campaign collapsed.

West opened the ten of diamonds which was covered by North's jack and East won the trick with the ace. He continued the suit and West's nine dislodged the king. Declarer played the ace, king and another heart, ruffing in dummy with the ten of spades.

East overruffed with the jack and led a third round of diamonds, putting his partner in with the queen. West played a fourth heart, trumped by North's seven and overruffed by East's eight of spades for the setting trick.

South was guilty of gross carelessness. When the third heart is led, a precautionary measure is in order. Instead of ruffing in dummy, it is suggested that declarer discard North's remaining diamond. If it should prove that the hearts are divided three-three, he will have surrendered nothing by his gesture, for he can now trump his diamond loser in dummy—and will merely have traded trick for trick.

The advantage of discarding the diamond on the third heart can readily be seen in the present instance, where it serves as a safety play against an unfavorable break in hearts. West is in with the ten of hearts, and his best return is a club. The dummy's ace is played and a trump led to the closed hand, so that South can ruff a diamond.

Another spade puts South in again to trump a fourth round of hearts in dummy. If East overruffs, it is the third and last trick for the defense. If he refuses to trump, South can ruff a club in his own hand and then score a 10th trick with his remaining high spade.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1967.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—There's a tendency here to let things ride, "not bother," which, at any time, is an error, but now could well mean losing a vantage point and some big gains later. Keep in trim, informed, well organized.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Similar in part to Aries, but you will have specifics of your own to observe and direct carefully. Mark time where you should, but don't procrastinate where essentials are concerned.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Business needs a push from within the ranks. Your talents are well suited to this cause. And "business" includes domestic matters, too. Some dandy achievement possible.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Several pieces falling into place, more due. Both mental and manual pursuits encouraged. Nice social contacts can be built up. Keep environment in order, duties in line, temper even.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Don't rush through anything that needs painstaking care. Your Sun's aspect is good, but you could go too far out on a limb if not careful. Some old patterns changing.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Certain things are definitely OUT of order, others prominently "in." Use good judgment. Shift amenably where it will benefit the total picture.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Plan your schedule, get started early, and be your sound well-balanced self all day. Every genuine endeavor has its reward.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—This year's key word is CHANGE, and today may be important in this area. It will develop in a variety of ways, some much to your liking, others not so. Take all in stride.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Mixed situations, but generally the order of things should be clear, and followed in like manner. Note where NOT to do as others do, as well as how to gain from them. You could be too outspoken. Weigh words.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—If you have hopes that something good will happen to you, do something definite about it. Don't sit and wait for things to happen. Follow the rules, and good going!

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—This day calls for distinctiveness, and originality plus meticulous care in all matters. You can expect stiff competition.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—You can do a number of things well, but on this type of day be mindful not to put the cart before the horse, nor to step over wisely drawn boundaries.

YOU BORN TODAY are self-reliant, yet dependent upon affection from loved ones. You can lead a battle, or defend an outpost with equal stamina, but balk at taking directions you feel unjustified, or which are given in a dictatorial manner. Your friendships include those in all ranks for you do not choose according to status or affluence, but because you "like." Hold to this quality; cement companionships through understanding and patience, never criticizing. Birthdate of: James Branch Cabell, novelist; Sir John Gielgud, Eng. dramatic actor.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A NEW BURN REMEDY

Accidental burns in children are as prevalent today as they were 30 years ago. The exceptions are those caused by electrical appliances and wiring. Treatment has improved and many victims in whom 40 per cent of the body surface has been burned can be saved. A dilute (0.5 per cent) solution of silver nitrate is the latest remedy. Thick dressings kept saturated with the solution are applied to the charred area. The individual is then covered with dry sheets or blankets. All dressings are changed every 12 hours and the area is cleansed daily. Skin grafting is done as soon as possible. The over-all care of the burn victim is equally important, because valuable body secretions are lost through the denuded surfaces.

There are many other treatments, including the use of pressure bandages over petrolatum strips of gauze. Some authorities keep the burned areas exposed to air. But regardless of the method, a visit to a burn center will convince anyone that treatment is a long, tedious process that requires the patience of Job.

Our fire departments warn against the use of highly flammable clothes and blankets. The number one cause is "clothing caught fire," especially among children. The open fireplace, trash fires, and playing with matches are common sources of fire. Girls are burned more often than boys because dresses ignite so readily.

Direct contact with flames, live coals, or a hot stove are other common offenders high on the list. Scalding from boiling liquid or grease is most likely to occur to toddlers. The pot handle sticks out over the stove or the youngster falls into a tub of hot water.

Several firemen have told me that many a home, apartment, and hotel fire is started by a person who was drinking and fell asleep with a cigarette. There is absolutely no substitute for prevention.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

TOMORROW: Fat by Degrees.

COCKTAILS AND DIETING

B.H. writes: Please write about the calories in Manhattans and whisky sours. My sister-in-law, who seldom took a drink, now consumes at least two every night. She has put on weight and her appetite is enormous. She claims these are good for her. Could cocktails be the reason for her weight gain?

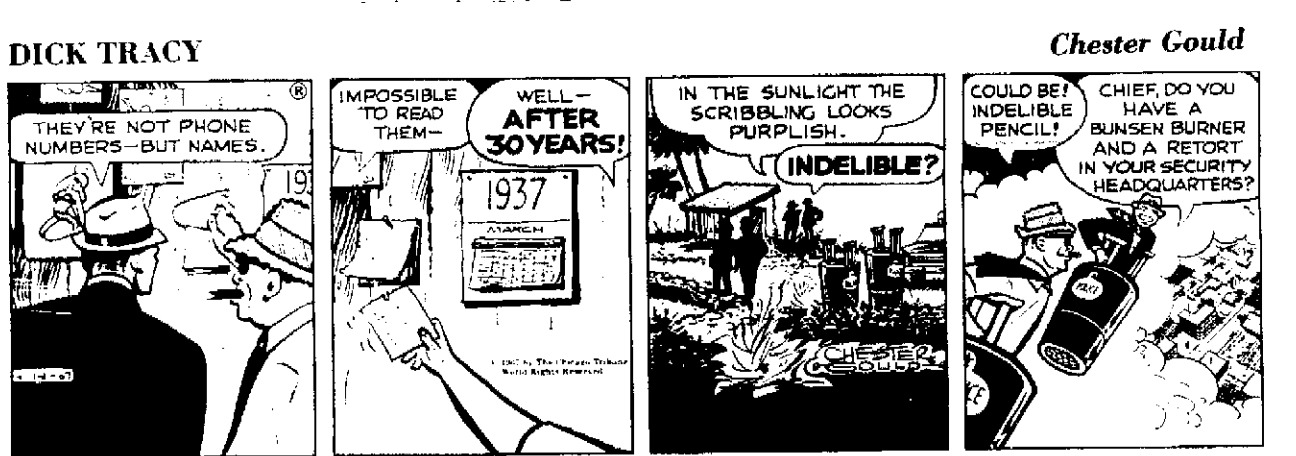

REPLY: Yes, a whisky sour cocktail contains 122 calories, and a Manhattan 167. In addition, cocktails stimulate the appetite.

MALE CLIMACTERIC

D.H.B. writes: Do men go through a change of life? How can a male tell when he reaches this phase of life?

REPLY: Yes, but few are bothered. The climacteric takes place five to 10 years later than it does in women. When the old boy reaches this stage, he may have hot flashes, or may lose interest, and worry unnecessarily.

Today's Health Hint—Cold salt water compresses ease tired eyes.

Junior Class Play Set

This week and the beginning of next, the Junior Class of Eisenhower High School is putting finishing touches on their class play production, "No Boys Allowed."

The play is about a young girl, Rita Baxter, who throws a slumber party for a group of her girlfriends. Like most slumber parties, no boys are allowed, but what a surprise the girls are in for.

After a misunderstanding between Rita, played by Amy Bowen, and her boyfriend, Fred, played by Tom Bosko, a wild and riotous evening follows as Fred tries to win Rita's affection again.

The play "No Boys Allowed" will be open to the public on April 20 and 22. It will begin at 8:00 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The price is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children. To find out how this mod production ends, the cast invites you to attend on either night. The play will also be presented to the student body during the afternoon of April 20 and 21.

The cast includes:

MR. MIDNIGHT — Gary Stanton. Mr. Midnight is a man who wears a grotesque mask on his face all the time. He is small and catlike and moves stealthily.

RITA BAXTER — Amy Bowen. Rita is a headstrong girl of 18 years. She is very attractive.

JANE BAXTER — Mary Lawson. Jane is Rita's younger sister. She is very pest-like in character.

VICTROLA — Vivian Tutmaher. She is a very superstitious Negro. She is very chubby and has a waddle when she walks.

FRED DANA — Tom Bosko. Fred is a confused young man of 18. He is very likable and good-looking.

LEROY DOYLE — Tim Allen. Leroy is also 18 and is a very loyal friend to Fred. He does not particularly care for girls.

EDWINA COOK — Lynn Burlingame. She is a girl of 17 or 18 and is very straightforward in manner.

BELINDA ELLIOT — Debbie Lindell. She is a boy-crazy girl of 17. She loves frilly clothes and is always talking.

NADA OWENS — Vicki Manelick. Nada is about 18. She has a disdainful attitude toward everything. She is very tall and graceful.

PATSY LARREL — Ann Tutmaher. She is a good natured and plump girl of 14. She is always hungry and SOMETIMES thinks about boys.

O'BRIEN — Dave Arthur. He is a very big man with a slight Irish brogue. He is a policeman.

KEITH GARLAND — Dick Hale. He is a conceited boy of 18 with a very confident manner.

HARVEY SMITH — Sherman Burdick. He is Keith's companion and is dominated by Keith. He is usually ending up doing Keith's dirty work.

MRS. DANA — Kathy Ludwick. She is in her forties and has a very pleasant manner.

Director of the play is Mr. Merle Nosker and student director is Mark Kane.

Tickets may be purchased from either the Juniors or at the door. The Juniors are working very hard to make this play a success. They are hoping to see you there! They guarantee you a great time.

Tidioute High Notes

The Tidioute Key Club held a work project Saturday with the aim of improving the appearance of the school grounds. The project included raking leaves and paper off the lawn, sweeping the parking lot, and doing various other odd jobs to improve the general appearance of the school.

Those members attending were Mike Chappel, Vern Klinestiver, Max Anderson, Ron Miles, Larry Anderson, Vince Pillar, Don Parr, and Carl Pillar.

Future Key Club plans include the installation of a school sign on the front lawn and securing a scoreboard for the athletic field.

SENIORS

Two Tidioute High School seniors: Mike Chappel, and Ken Nicholson, recently received notification that they will be awarded scholarships from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency.

Mike was awarded a $1000 scholarship which he plans to use while attending Cannon College this fall. He will take a liberal arts course.

Ken Nicholson, the other scholarship winner, received a grant for $650. Ken plans to attend the Pitt campus in Titusville, where he will take a course in electrical engineering.

Both scholarships will be renewed each year while the two boys are in college.

Tidioute High School science department head, Eugene S. Szul, recently was awarded a grant to attend a summer session at Juniata College.

The program, for high school teachers of Chemistry, deals with "Chemical Equilibrium" and is sponsored by the National Science Foundation. A total of 40 participants will take part in the session which will be conducted from early July to August 6.

This is the third year that Mr. Szul will attend one of these summer sessions, having attended Thiel College and Washington & Lee University for two other summer programs.

Group "A" activities were held during the sixth period on Wednesday. Those organizations meeting were Cheerleaders Club, Projector's Club, and Varsity Club.

The Varsity Club plans a basketball game in the near future to provide funds for their varsity jackets.

Ike Holds Open House

By CINDY GLOTZ and MITZI BREZEE

Monday, was open house for parents of E.H.S. students. Open House is a night that is set aside for the parents and teachers. On this night the parents and teachers get together to discuss the accomplishments of their sons or daughters.

During this Open House, Mr.

Bauer, E.H.S. principal, showed slides of the visitation that the teachers have made to other schools. The slides showed how the schools used their improved facilities to better a student's education. Mr. Bauer also showed a transparency of the planned new building program.

The bids for the new additions to the school will be opened on the 20th of this month. Construction will begin on or about the first of June. It is expected to be completed late in 1968.

The new plans for the addition to the school show the following proposals. There will be an expansion of the cafeteria layout. A bigger Instructional Materials Center is being planned. The present library will be changed to a Language Laboratory for purposes of studying English and foreign languages.

The students will also have access to a large group instruction center. It will be used for discussion groups in different subject areas. A new Science Center for the Science department will consist of adding six new rooms to the agenda.

For the benefit of the students, six new classrooms will be added. Three of these classrooms will be double classrooms with a movable partition. Two new arts and crafts rooms are to be constructed.

The present chemistry laboratory will be remodeled into a newer and bigger Office Practice Center. Also the arts and crafts room will be converted to a new guidance office.

The music center, which at the present consists of one music room, will be given a new vocal music practice area. The shop also has a few new changes coming. A new shop area for mechanical drawing, electronic, and power mechanics will be constructed.

A few new student clinics and teacher planning centers are to be added.

All in all, the school will be expanded to a bigger and better high school that Warren County can be proud of.

Allegheny College Sets Summer School

This summer, on an expanded basis, high school students who have done good work through their junior year can be admitted to college-credit courses in the Allegheny College summer school, according to an announcement by director Henry Pommer.

Qualified students will be admitted to the regular summer school program, he said, will live and study among other summer school students, and will be expected to perform the same work required of other students.

Benefit to the students will be fourfold, in Dr. Pommer's opinion. He said participants will 1) spend an intellectually challenging summer, 2) gain an understanding of college life from the inside, 3) emerge with an enriched background, and 4) receive a college credit applicable toward a degree.

Admission will be based on the student's promise for academic success in the areas he chooses to study. Applications must be filed by May 1; there is no application fee. On or about May 15 applicants will be notified whether or not they have been accepted.

Among courses available in the first summer session, June 19 - July 21, are Renaissance and Baroque Painting and Sculpture, General Biology, Plane Analytic Geometry, Introduction to Music, American Religious Thought, Elementary Chemistry, and Principles of Sociology. Second-session courses, July 24 - August 25, include Introduction to the Theater.

For a catalog and application forms, interested students should write to the Director of Admissions, Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. 16335.

It's Play Ball At Warren High

By BECKI HAGBERG

The Warren High Varsity Club has promised an exciting and entertaining evening tomorrow night as they sponsor a basketball doubleheader at the Beaty Junior High School gym.

The first game will begin at 7:00 with the High School Cheerleaders taking on a strong Sophomore Y-Teen team. Playing for the cheerleaders will be Becky Potter, Linda Hofer, Mary Anne Frits, Linda Beach, Linda Loomis, Kathy Keller, Kathy Mattei, Kathi Peterson, Chris Bryan, Paula Mead, Karen Griffin, and Cathy Eberhardt.

The Y-Teens will take the floor with Debbie Bell, Pat Smith, Penny Thompson, Judy Dahl, Charlene Keyvinski, Patty Simmons, Betty Jean Holder, Mary Jane Poulson, Mary Jane Poulson, Sheila Salerno, Mary Ahlquist, and Cheryl Scalise.

The big feature of the evening is slated for 8:00 p.m., and will pit age and experience against youth and vitality as the high school faculty attempts to struggle through four quarters of strenuous activity against the energetic, untiring Varsity Club members.

The teachers will try their luck with Michael Teleha, Ronald Isackson, James Hughey, John Creek, George Knopick, John Eggleston, James Zunic, Lee Chew, and Bill Vizza.

Representing the Varsity Club will be Rick Nasman, Mike Hackett, Scott Hunter, Mike Hesch, Rick Brewster, Bob Hunter, Lowell Eckert, Marc Segel, Corky Greenwood, and Jim Kerven.

The tables have been turned slightly, and while the regular cheerleaders are busy on the court, several members will show their versatility as they cheer the girls on to victory. These boys are Rick Nasman, Rick Brewster, Jim Kerven, Mike Hackett, Doug Sorensen, and Mike Hesch.

Warren High Varsity Club Busy Crowd

By BECKI HAGBERG

Created only two years ago, the Warren High Varsity Club is one of the most active organizations of the school. In March of 1965, Mr. Bill Vizza and Mr. Lee Chew decided to group all Varsity players together into a club of their own. The first meeting was held for any boy who had either lettered in a sport or participated in a sport for two years.

Officers were elected and a constitution, including rules and requirements for admittance was written. This year's officers are Bill Shaffer, president; Dave Cobb, vice-president; Jim Kerven, Secretary and Jim Oriole, treasurer. The rules are simple; when a member gets five demerits, he is ousted from the club. Demerits are given if a boy misses a meeting or signs up to work somewhere and doesn't show up.

On the other hand, the members receive points for such things as selling candy and programs at athletic events, taking reserved seat tickets and ushering people to their seats, attending work bees, making announcements over the Public Address system, helping the Sports Boosters sell memberships, being a member of a committee, and heading a committee. Once a member has earned ten points, he is awarded a Varsity letter jacket.

The club has several goals which include providing jackets for eligible boys, giving each Senior a color picture of himself in the uniform of his choice, and buying a new Public Address and Sound System for the gymnasium, at the end of this year.

Projects undertaken by the boys number quite a few. In the fall of this year, they held a massive candy drive, netting over $500 by selling "Wonderbars." They served as ticket takers and ushers at Basketball games, Wrestling matches, and Football games. They have sponsored dances and sold programs, and in collaboration with the Sports Boosters, have obtained patrons for football programs and helped to sell memberships at the Sports Booster booth during the recent Kiwanis Sports and Outdoor Show.

Their most recent project is the Student-Faculty basketball game to be held at Beaty Junior High tomorrow evening.

TIDIOUTE

From Our Corner

by Lenore McIntyre

RUNNING BACKWARDS

The answer to the question asked so often by so many people as to why Tidoute can't make any progress ought to be very evident to anyone who looks objectively at the action and inaction of those who make the decisions.

A case in point is the tabling by borough council of action on a proposal that would permit the Pennsylvania Fish Commission to consider the acquisition of river front acres in Tidoute for the purpose of developing a recreational and river access area.

There were five members of council present Monday night, four of whom definitely indicated they would vote in favor of the resolution. The fifth member, while not actually opposing the recreational plan, insisted that more time should be spent in investigating potential costs of operation and other aspects of the proposal.

This is putting the cart before the horse, an old-fashioned cliché but one that is apropos in this situation.

If council waits a year to make a decision it will not have any more information available on which to render that decision than it has right now. And the reason is that the facts it seeks cannot be gathered and evaluated until a preliminary step is taken by the Fish Commission.

The resolution in question simply was a request that council indicate that it was agreeable to the Fish Commission coming into the borough and buying land along the riverfront, developing boat launching ramps, parking areas, and sanitary facilities. This could easily represent an investment of as much (or more) as $40,000 by the Fish Commission.

This recreational area then would be turned over to the borough for control, operation and maintenance. Naturally, these items represent a local expenditure but not a prohibitive nor burdensome addition to the budget.

But the Commission will not and cannot even make a preliminary study of land acquisition or spend any time on a project's feasibility until it has the approval of council. The Commission not only will be unable to decide if it even wants to acquire this land but may conclude that council's action (or inaction) indicates that Tidoute does not want such a development.

Considering the background of this effort, which should be common information to any public official, it is no wonder that some members of the Tidoute Regional Planning Commission are considering resigning from that body.

The Tidoute Chamber of Commerce introduced the idea of the riverfront recreational complex about three years ago. The Tidoute Regional Planning Commission, formed jointly by Tidoute borough and the townships of Limestone, Triumph and Deerfield, took the proposal and have been working on it for two years.

At the Planning Commission's request several months ago, council wrote a letter (several in fact) to the Fish Commission asking it to consider acquiring the land for public recreational use. After considerable prodding, the Commission has indicated it would be interested in the development of such a project providing Tidoute is interested in operating and maintaining it.

Unless Tidoute takes this offer it never will have a community park and recreational area. If it can't afford to maintain and operate a gift of this size, it certainly can never hope to spend for land purchase and development what the Fish Commission may be willing to invest.

Perhaps after making a study the Fish Commission may not want to do it, either. But we'll never know unless council agrees to let the Commission take its initial steps.

What makes Tidoute run backwards? Is it because it so rarely takes any forward steps?

Tidoute Calendar

MOUNTAIN GRANGE will meet tonight at the regular hour in the Grange Hall.

RELIGIOUS RALLY for Tidoute area young people in junior and senior high school grades will be conducted at 2:30-4:30 p.m. Sunday, April 16, at St. John's Church in Tidoute.

TIDIOUTE FORTNIGHTLY CLUB will meet at the home of Mrs. Carmon Buck on Monday evening, April 17. Each member is requested to bring slides or photographs and there will be a Chinese auction.

TIDIOUTE LIONS CLUB will have a dinner meeting Tuesday evening, April 18, at the Pittsburgh.

TIDIOUTE PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 18, at the high school. The program will include a talk by an exchange student and election of officers will be held. Faculty members Felicia Passaro, Charles Weir, Eugene Szul and Margaret Froman will be in their home rooms to hold conferences with parents.

TIDIOUTE AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will meet at the Vets Bldg. at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 18.

Janice McGraw Wins Contest

Janice McGraw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGraw, has been named first place winner of the "Young America Speaks and Acts" essay contest conducted recently in the Tidoute school by the Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post 8803. Janice received a $25 U.S. savings bond as her prize.

Runners-up were Ronald Miles, second place, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Miles, and Edward Ziegler, third place, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ziegler.

Miss McGraw's essay has been forwarded to the state scholarship chairman for the state judging. The first place winner in the state contest will then compete for the national scholarships for which these prizes will be awarded: 1st place, $1,000 scholarship and gold medal; 2nd place, $500 scholarship and gold medal; 3rd place, $250 scholarship and gold medal. The next ten winners will receive citations for honorable mention.

Religious Rally At St. John's Sunday

On Sunday, April 16, Father Frederick Gilbert, O.M.I., will conduct a religious rally for all junior and senior high school students at St. John's Catholic Church in Tidoute, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

This service is the first of its kind ever to be held at St. John's. All parents are urged to encourage their high school boys and girls to attend. Father Gilbert comes well equipped to interest all students of high school age in the development of their spiritual lives, having conducted such ventures for thousands of young people throughout the United States and Canada.

On the same day, at 7:30 p.m., a mission, which is a renewal of fervent faith and practice of one's religious convictions, will begin for all adults and children of St. John's parish. Adults are urged to keep all evenings reserved for this period of divine grace and benefactions.

Father Gilbert will bring to the people of the Tidoute area much knowledge of God's love for the Christian people of this locality, from his vast experience in this field of apostolic labor.

Borough Council Finance Report

Tidoute borough council approved the payment of bills totaling $5,719.74 at Monday night's meeting. Included in the sizable expenditures for the month was a payment on the principal of the approximate $11,000 loan made for street improvements last summer and interest on the $8,000 balance which is due in September.

Fines and penalties during March amounted to $30.80. Meter collections totaled $177.99. The treasurer's statement showed the following fund balances: general $8,590.85; highway, $4.28; lighting, $985.70.

ODDS & ENDS CLASS of First Methodist Church will have a dinner meeting Saturday evening, April 15, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barr.

OIL CITY Man Injured

OIL CITY — Daniel Sumosky of Oil City RD 2 is in satisfactory condition in Oil City Hospital. He was injured Wednesday in a two-car crash two miles north of Rouseville on Route 8.

Sewage Project Status Reviewed

The status of Tidoute's proposed sewage treatment system project was reviewed in Harrisburg Wednesday and while it appears that nothing concrete will be done until next year, a spokesman for the Tidoute delegation said he believed at least two accomplishments resulted from the conference.

One is the opening of lines of communication to all Harrisburg departments. The second is committing the Department on Community Affairs to look after Tidoute's interests in obtaining construction money and restraining action on mandamus proceedings against Tidoute for violating the cease-and-desist order on dumping raw sewage into the Allegheny river.

The local delegation included Mayor G. K. Lodge, borough council vice president William Robinson, and George Atkin Jr., chairman of the municipal authority.

Also present at the meeting were Joseph Barry, Secretary of the Department on Community Affairs, and the vice secretary, Dan Rogers; Sanders Spencer, representing Appalachia; state FHA director Myers; an agent of the Sanitary Water Board; Senator Richard Frame and Assemblyman William Fuelhart; Leon Langford of Chester Engineers; and David Swanson, Tidoute's municipal authority solicitor.

In determining the status of Tidoute's application for federal help, it was revealed that the application has been approved in Washington and forwarded to Harrisburg with instructions to issue a memo of commitment for a $362,000 loan and a $25,000 grant to underwrite the acquisition of the water company and construct a sewage treatment system.

However, Harrisburg could not issue the memo at that time because it no longer had any uncommitted federal funds available. Tidoute's application was placed on the priority list and will be considered when appropriations again are made.

In the meantime, the application will be amended to reflect the acquisition of the water company, consummated in December, 1966, through a bond issue.

Under the present plan, Tidoute should receive a 30 per cent grant for construction costs of a sewage system plant and interceptor system, a 50 per cent grant for the collector system, and a 4 1/2 per cent, 40-year loan to cover the balance.

Further evaluation is necessary to determine if this plan of financing will guarantee not only construction but also operational costs at average domestic user charges of $5.50 per month or less. Otherwise, arbitrary adjustments will be

Market Rebounds After Slow Start

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—The stock market worked upward yesterday after a mixed opening, carrying market indicators to their highest levels of the day at the close.

Gains of 6 to 9 points were registered by such glamour stocks as I.B.M., Polaroid, Xerox, Fairchild Camera and Teledyne.

Price advances on the New York Stock Exchange outnumbered losses by 711 to 446, the third consecutive gain since Monday's broad retreat.

Trading continued relatively slow. Volume on the big board eased to 7.61 million shares from 7.75 million Wednesday.

The average daily volume so far this week has been about 7.8 million shares. Average turnover was 9.9 million shares in the first three months of 1967.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average regained all of Wednesday's 3.01-point loss, rising 4.18 points to 848.83. The New York Times combined average of 50 industrial and railroad stocks rose 2.21 points to 495.38.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index advanced 0.32 point to 49.11. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.08 point to 89.46. Its utility index closed at a 1967 high of 71.54, up 0.34 point.

Prices turned slightly higher on the American Stock Exchange.

The index of stock prices rose 10 cents to $17.39. Of the 874 issues traded 366 advanced and 288 declined. Volume was 3.3 million compared with 3,004,065 Wednesday.

On the over-the-counter market industrial issues were slightly higher in moderate trading.

On the big board, Chrysler paced the auto section with a 1-point advance to 38 1/2. Its sales increase of 25 per cent in early April was the highest in the industry. Ford, which had a small decline in sales, rose 3/4 to 50 1/2, while General Motors, which had a small increase, added 5/8 to 76 1/2.

Polaroid again was a pace-setter, soaring 7 points to 200. That was the highest point of the day and the highest 1/4 away from the stock's record high of 200 1/2 earlier this year.

The photographic equipment company told stockholders at the annual meeting on Tuesday that first-quarter earnings climbed to 59 cents a share from 44 cents in the 1966 period. Edwin H. Land, president, also discussed future plans for a low-priced color camera and an entry into the document copier field.

I.B.M. jumped 9 1/2 to 456. Control Data, the second-most active stock, jumped 3 1/4 to 67 1/2. Burroughs added 4 1/2 to 120; National Cash Register rose 1 1/2 to 88 1/4, and Scientific Data Systems was up 1 1/2 at 103.

Other big gainers of the day included Xerox, up 9 1/2 to 272 1/2; Teledyne, 7 1/2 to 144 1/2; Corning Glass, 6 1/2 to 336; Fairchild Camera, 6 1/2 to 171 1/2; Ling-Temco-Vought, 3 to 124 and Itek, 3 1/2 to 121 1/2.

Gulf & Western Industries, the most-active stock with 152,200 turnover, sagged as low as 48 1/2 in early trading but recovered to close at 48, down 1/4.

RIDGE HOMES

Don't wait any longer to start building the home you want on that building lot you've picked out. Come in and talk it over.

Learn how you can build your home right now with "rent money."

That check you mail to your landlord every month could be helping to pay for your own home... a Ridge home that's a woman's world, distinctly you—custom designed to fit your taste and your family's specific needs. Choose the Ridge model you like best from our 37 basic designs. We'll change it to your way of thinking.

Concerned about getting a mortgage? When you buy a Ridge home, you can do some of the work yourself. Every job you do adds real cash value to your new home. The banks call this "equity", and it weighs heavily in your favor when a bank is considering your mortgage application. We'll help you get that mortgage. You'll find out why landlords don't like us.

Think about this: Every six hours another family moves into their new Ridge home. Don't just sit there! Come out and find out for yourself.

THE BRIARWOOD: one of 37 different models. This sprawling rancher is ideally suited to a longer building lot. Its 4 bedrooms, 2 baths—1414 sq. ft. of living space gives a larger family both privacy and space. $7,665 includes the complete heating and electrical systems, gutters and downspouts, and the complete bathrooms and kitchen all ready for installation. The foundation and the erection of a weatherproofed exterior by your local Ridge dealer is optional at additional cost. Delivery within 300 miles of Philadelphia, Pa. is free.

WANT A GOOD DEAL?
Find it on a
Simplicity BROADMOOR® 707
Deal yourself a Simplicity Broadmoor 707. For little more than the price of a single-purpose riding mower, you have a real tractor going for you — with Simplicity's job-mated, fast hitch attachments giving you a full measure of all-season utility... from lawn-mowing to snow-throwing (and even "vacuum-cleaning" leaves and clippings). The high quality values include self-acting clutch and all-gear transmission... Floating traction tires that won't mar tender turf or bog down in slippery going.
For Your Good Deal, See Us.
We'll be glad to help you choose your "Simplicity way of life" from the long labor-saving line of Simplicity riding tractors and mowers, rotary tillers, snow throwers and job-mated attachments.

Lutherans of St. Paul's In Fund Appeal

St. Paul's Lutheran Church is planning a campaign among its congregation for its third three-year-building fund appeal, it was announced yesterday. A 12-hour prayer vigil will be held at the church from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday. The church, which acquired property on Conewago avenue last year, hopes to have plans drawn up by this fall. Construction may begin as early as the summer of 1968. The fund appeal will be conducted next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights. A program on the needs of the church will be presented.

BOSTON (AP)—Recorded telephone announcements are available in Boston for the bird watcher, in Paris for the lover, in Germany for the gourmet, in England for the parent in need of a fairy tale and in Switzerland for the doer of crossword puzzles. The New England Telephone Co. came up with a worldwide survey of these recording services by drawing upon several sources, including the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. New York began the service in 1928 with recordings that gave the time. That particular service has spread throughout the world and in most countries is called "the talking clock." One of the most popular of Boston's services is Mrs. Arthur W. Argue's "Voice of Audubon" which tells about the latest sightings of meadowlarks in Gloucester and towhees in Dover. Parisians are taken care of by a similar service. The instructor presented her pupils. One group fashioned dresses they made with the award going to Cindy Fitzgerald, another group dressed in nighties. Each club announced their projects; Mrs. Evelyn P. Gailor, president of the senior club, the town's library their main project, Mrs. E. L. Rader, president of the Progressive club the Well Baby Clinic to resume in April. The Junior club president, Mrs. James Rudolph announced their project as Operation Healthy Babies.

June Art Classes Set

CHAUTAUQUA — Pre-season classes at the Art Center of Chautauqua Institution will be held from June 26 through June 30. Revington Arthur, well-known painter, will again direct the activities of the Art Center, serving also as instructor in painting and drawing for the pre-season and regular summer sessions. He will be assisted by members of the Art Center staff. Ten comfortable, airy studios comprise the Art Center, where instruction is available in painting, drawing, arts and crafts, sculpture, photography, weaving, and decoupage. Classes in creative painting and drawing media, which began in 1964, are now a permanent addition—the popular portrait, landscape and abstract painting classes. All classes are designed for beginners and amateur painters, as well as for the needs of the practicing artist. Don Baird will return to assist Arthur with painting and drawing classes. James Achuff of Syracuse will offer instruction in ceramics, metal craft, and other media. Students in his classes will have the benefit of the latest and best equipment. Art for Young People will be taught by Miss Barbara Hansen who studied at Kent State University and who has assisted Arthur at Chautauqua. H. Richard Duhme, well-known sculptor at Washington University, St. Louis, will be in charge of the Sculpture Department again this season. Weaving classes will be under the capable direction of Miss Mary Snyder of Pasadena, California. University credit is given for many of the art courses, including weaving. The credit classes in painting and drawing are under the instruction of George Vander Sluis, Syracuse University. Decoupage, an addition to the Art Center courses this year, will be under the direction of Mrs. Carroll Sheeran of Birmingham, Michigan.

Reading Program Plans Set at Chautauqua

CHAUTAUQUA — Chautauqua Institution announced yesterday that under the auspices of the Syracuse University Reading and Language Arts Center, a six-week reading improvement program for senior high school students will be offered again during the 1967 season. The program is designed as a developmental program to help strengthen reading and study skills necessary to cope effectively with the reading and study demands at the high school and college levels. The program is not appropriate for young people who are slow learners occasioned by below average ability or severe emotional disturbances. The program will again be under the direct supervision of Edwin Draper, a professional educator, who has been a public school teacher and was a member of the Syracuse Reading Center staff. He is currently a school principal.

PENNSYLVANIA

Oil City's school board has established a policy which calls for 12-month contracts with teachers, who would work for 230 days under the new plan. The salary schedule, which calls for the longer working year, provides substantial increases in salary for the additional time and, in the opinion of the area's education association president, raises the teachers to a more professional status. Hemisphere Presidents Approve Plan of Action

BY JAMES RESTON

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay — The presidents of the American republics approved unanimously yesterday a declaration of purpose and "action program" designed to achieve the economic integration of the Americas.

Bolivia was the only absentee at the second meeting of the presidents in history and Ecuador raised the only objection to the final communiqué. President Otto Arosemena Gomez of Ecuador, 42, the youngest chief of state at the meeting, approved the text but announced his intention to call for more aid from the United States.

The presidents proclaimed

"the solidarity of the countries they represent and their decision to achieve to the fullest measure the free, just, and democratic social order demanded by the peoples of the hemisphere."

The declaration summarized the decisions of the presidents in the following terms:

"Latin America will create a common market." It added: "The President of the United States of America, for his part, declares his firm support for this promising Latin American initiative."

"We will lay the physical foundations for Latin American economic integration through multinational projects so as to open the way for the movement of both people and goods throughout the continent."

"We will join in efforts to increase substantially Latin American trade earnings."

"We will modernize the living conditions of our rural populations, raise agricultural productivity in general and increase food production for the benefit of both Latin America and the rest of the world."

"We will vigorously promote education for development."

In order to promote these extensive and ambitious objectives, the chiefs of state also declared their intention to "limit military expenditures in proportion to the actual demands of constitutional provisions."

They also expressed the hope that the treaty on the banning of nuclear weapons, in Latin America "may enter into force as soon as possible."

The conference reached no spectacular new decisions. The U.S. did not come forward with an offer of massive aid, as some officials in this part of the world had hoped. Johnson did commit himself to more assistance for opening up the inner frontiers of the continent, and he indicated a willingness to consider a new system of trade preferences, not for Latin America

Korean Government Charges Escalation

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SEOUL — South Korean government officials charged yesterday that the recent escalation of North Korean provocations along the demilitarized zone seeks to create a feeling of crisis among the South Korean people as the May 3 presidential election nears.

Both Defense Minister Kim Sung Eun and Public Information Minister Hong Jong Chul made this appraisal of the mounting tension along the 150-mile truce border after 40 to 60 North Korean and 48 South Korean soldiers clashed Wednesday night in a fight inside the demilitarized zone that lasted more than two hours.

At least three Communist soldiers were killed while South Korea suffered one dead and three wounded.

The encounter, the third in eight days, was the largest border clash since the Korean War ended in an armistice in 1953.

Artillery fire from the South was used for the first time since the war. In previous incidents, on April 5 and 10, a total of eight North Koreans were slain, four in each incident. There were no South Korean casualties.

Despite the frequent clashes South Korean officials said they did not see any signs of a major invasion attempt by the Communists.

Defense Minister Kim said at a news conference that North Korea's "reckless acts," which have increased since last fall, were "harassment tactics designed to give a false impression that security along the D.M.Z. is in danger."

"Our armed forces are fully prepared to repel any Communist attacks," he added. He also attributed the upsurge to Pyongyang's desire to "divert the North Korean peoples' attention from its economic failures and make an excuse for its continuous military buildup."

The United Nations command in Seoul strongly protested the armistice agreement, "the protest was filed in a message sent by United States Army Maj. Gen. Richard G. Ciccollella, a senior U.N. command member of the military armistice commission to his Communist counterpart."

An armistice commission meeting is scheduled to be held at Panmunjon today to discuss the violation at the request of the U.N. command.

Christmas Displays To Increase

Warren retailers yesterday decided to spend more on Christmas decorations this year.

Meeting at the Blue Manor, members of the retail division of Warren Area Chamber of Commerce decided to raise a $6,000 Christmas decoration fund.

Last year about $1,800 was spent on decorations.

The retail division hopes this year to raise $2,200 with the professional division contributing an additional $1,800 and the industrial division $2,000.

The increase this year is reportedly part of a program of yearly improvement in Christmas decorations.

Also discussed at yesterday's meeting was a sales promotion planned for April 21 and 22. Called "Spruce Up For Spring" the program involves the distribution of 3,000 spruce trees to the public.

Customers of participating Warren merchants will pick up cards at stores, then exchange the cards for four-year-old spruce trees at any of three locations: DeFrees Playground, General Joseph Warren Park, or Celoron Park.

Warren Housing Inc. Approves Two Sites To Provide for Aged

By BETTY RICE

Two sites for the proposed low cost housing for the aged have received approval from Warren Housing Inc. and that group will proceed immediately to contact the property owners involved.

Members of the group met yesterday afternoon at Northwest Savings & Loan to consider several site proposals presented by Walter Bergler, chairman of the site committee.

In viewing the possibility of acquiring two sites, Architect Lawrence Beyer eyed the probability of three buildings—two on one location which would accommodate 22, more or less, units; the other 11, more or less, units.

Questionnaires circulated thus far indicated an apparent need for 35 apartment units. While yesterday was the deadline for the questionnaires to be returned, Warren Housing Inc. yesterday decided to extend the time period since it was felt more concerned persons could be contacted. If final results show a need for more units, another site will undoubtedly be sought.

The sites under consideration, as compared to other locations, appeared to run lower as to costs of acquisition, demolition and site preparation—an important factor, according to organization members, in building the facilities and keeping rentals within a reasonable bracket.

Beyer roughly estimated and stated as an educated guess the two properties might involve about $30,000 in the areas of land acquisition, demolition and site preparation. Other properties considered ran well in excess of this figure.

Members asked the architect to present preliminary plans for the apartment units, based on approximately 10 per cent falling into the efficiency or one-bedroom design, the balance on super-efficiency units with more space and two bedrooms.

In discussing the questionnaires, officials agreed that people were somewhat inclined not to commit themselves without some idea of site selection and apartment design. It was emphasized the questionnaire was not a commitment but designed only for analysis as to needs.

It was pointed out that the cost of constructing two or three separate buildings would probably cost more money, not only in the building but in future maintenance and equipment. The corporation members, however, noted the intrinsic value

Genevieve Blatt Vows Aged Aid

By HUGH FLEMING

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Pennsylvania's Genevieve Blatt called for more federal funds to help the country's aging poor.

The former Secretary of Internal Affairs for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and 1964 Democratic candidate for the Senate made this pledge as she took the oath of office as a $27,000-a-year assistant director for older persons' programs of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

On accepting her new job, she promised to do all in her power to increase aid to the 5,400,000 elderly Americans now living in poverty and to end their lot as "an almost forgotten segment of our population."

Miss Blatt told the several hundred persons crowded into the flower-bedecked OEO conference room for the ceremony that half of the nation's population over the age of 55 are living on annual incomes of $1,000 or less.

"The federal government isn't doing enough for them," said Miss Blatt, "and I know that the Congress and the people want more done for them."

Miss Blatt said it was perfectly natural in the early days of the war on poverty for federal planners to give the highest priority to solving the problems of the youthful poor. But the time has come, she said, to "redirect and rethink our priorities and make room for these older people."

Senator Joseph S. Clark said Miss Blatt is entering the federal service after "a wonderful and distinguished career in the public service of Pennsylvania. We wish her all the luck in the world and we know that she will do a good job, as she always has."

Giant U.S. Banks Take Steps To Curb Viet Black Market

By TOM BUCKLEY

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON, South Vietnam — The Bank of America and the Chase Manhattan Bank have taken steps to prevent the use of their military banking facilities by currency black marketers.

The banks, the world's largest, have agreed to close out the accounts of Americans employed by contracting companies here and to move their military banking business from their head offices in downtown Saigon to military reservations.

The agreement was reached after weeks of secret negotiations between officials of the United States embassy and Treasury Department and Nguyen Huu Hanh, who is governor of the national bank and minister of the economy.

Hanh said yesterday that he was disturbed not only by the damage being done to the Vietnamese economy by the currency manipulations but by the possibility that the position of the banks might become a political issue in South Vietnam's coming national elections.

The banks opened their offices here last year. While their commercial banking business is subject to Vietnamese government inspection and regulation, the military banking activities are controlled by the U.S. Treasury.

The banks act in effect as Treasury Department contractors in offering checking accounts and other commercial banking services to servicemen.

To make savings and remittances to the U.S. as easy as possible, and thereby reduce the amount of dollars being spent here, the banks pay interest on small checking accounts instead of levying a service charge as is done in the U.S. The business is carried on at a loss, which the treasury makes up by increasing its deposits and other business with the two banks.

The key to the racket, in which many persons are thought to have made large sums, was the military payment certificate. It is issued in denominations up to $10 to servicemen on payday instead of United States currency, which cannot legally be possessed here.

The certificates, which are meant to be used only for post exchange and similar purchases, are accepted by many Vietnamese merchants. Because of the illegality of such transactions, the certificates are sold at a heavy discount on the black market.

Adenauer's Condition Worsens to Near Death

By DAVID BINDER

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
RHONDORF, West Germany — Konrad Adenauer's condition worsened yesterday as the 91-year-old former chancellor lay in the grip of a serious bronchial infection in his home here. Attending physicians said his heart and circulatory system had weakened during the morning and that his whole organism was affected.

He is apparently being given oxygen constantly. Cylinders of oxygen were sent to his house on a slope overlooking the Rhine yesterday afternoon, the second such shipment in two days.

Drugs were brought to his bedside by a local pharmacist, presumably to aid in stimulating his circulation, which physicians described in a medical bulletin as a prime aim.

His seven children, including Monsignor Paul Adenauer, have gathered in the green-shuttered white house. The gravel path leading to the house is blocked by a police guard and three watchdogs.

A large crowd of reporters and photographers and a small group of neighbors have been waiting for news, some since Wednesday noon when Adenauer's grave condition was announced in a medical bulletin. Except for the newsmen, life in Rhondorf seemed much as it must have been 31 years ago when Adenauer moved here after the Nazis dismissed him as mayor of Cologne.

The Rhondorf church which Adenauer had helped to finance was closed yesterday. But the small Virgin of St. Mary Chapel built in 1714 on the main street was open and 15 candles burned before the altar. It was a place where Adenauer occasionally stopped on his way to Bonn.

Government affairs were slowed in the West German capital. Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, who visited Adenauer 10 days ago in Rhondorf, has asked to be kept informed of his condition, as have President De Gaulle of France and President Franco of Spain. Pope Paul VI sent a telegram with his blessing to Rhondorf.

WOULD HALT FUTURE ESTABLISHMENT

Bill Backed to Halt Campuses

By JOHN L. TAYLOR

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Board of Education gave its unanimous endorsement yesterday to proposed legislation authorizing the board to halt future establishment of branch campuses by state-aided universities or colleges.

The move was in line with the board's proposed Master Plan for Higher Education, which called for the further development of a system of community colleges rather than the continuance of branch campuses.

Frank Hawkins, chairman of the board's Council of Higher Education, urged that the bill now before the Senate be supported. He said he understood that it had Gov. Shafer's backing, but an aide to the governor said no official position had been taken.

The bill, bearing bipartisan sponsorship, would give the board authority to approve or disapprove the establishment of a branch campus by a state-aided institution of higher learning. The board made clear in its Master Plan that branch campuses, similar in scope to two-year community colleges, would not be approved.

If enacted into law, the proposed legislation would have the effect of blocking the establishment of additional commonwealth campuses by Pennsylvania State University.

The board believes that branch campuses duplicate programs of community colleges, putting the state in competition with itself since it partially finances both. Penn State feels there is a need for both types of institutions.

The issue was brought to a head when Penn State agreed to establish a branch in Delaware County at the request of the county commissioners. The board approved a community college for the county upon petition of local school districts.

"This is a matter of effective and efficient use of state funds, not a matter of the State Board wanting more power," Gail L. Rose, a board member, said.

Sponsors of the Senate bill are President Pro Tempore Robert D. Fleming, a Republican, and Sen. Thomas F. Lamb and Minority Leader John H. Devlin, Democrats, all of Allegheny County.

In another move, the board denied a request from the Aliquippa School district for permission to withdraw as a sponsor of the Beaver County Community College. Beaver is another county in which Penn State operates a branch campus.

Hawkins said the Aliquippa district cited financial reasons in petitioning to withdraw from the community college. He added, however, that the college itself would be hurt financially if the district's request were granted. The denial vote was unanimous.

The board also called on the state to make a survey of college dormitories to determine if they meet minimum fire safety requirements. The action was prompted by a recent fire at Cornell University in New York which claimed nine lives.

Wheat Belt Receives Rain; But Drought Far from Ended

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The wheat areas that needed it the most got substantial rains the last two days but the drought in the nation's breadbasket is far from over.

Conneautville Fire Truck Replaced

CONNEAUTVILLE — The volunteer fire department is looking for another fire truck. While the present truck has only 5,940 miles on the speedometer, it's a little obsolete.

The truck is a 1938 Chevrolet pickup bought new by the department and used for the past 30 years.

Department volunteers are seeking $5,000 for a new four-wheel drive truck. A community campaign is being staged to raise the money. The old truck probably will be retained by the department.

Tax Workshop Set

This afternoon at 2 p.m. a seminar for the local tax collectors of Warren County is being held by County Treasurer Jack McCool in the Jury Room in the Courthouse. County Commissioners Clerk William Allen will participate.

"The weather has been crossed up for about 30 months now, it's about time it got corrected," said one happy wheat farmer, Carl Giersch of Salina, Kan. "I hope we don't get it all in 60 days now and then have it forget us this summer. But I'm not complaining."

Happiness to Giersch and other farmers in the parched wheat belt came in the form of rain ranging from one to three or more inches.

"We got from one to two inches in the central and most of the western parts of the state," said John L. Wilson, agriculture statistician for the Kansas crop and livestock reporting service.

"These rains will be extremely helpful, particularly on the fall seeded grain and in starting the new grass growth in pastures. Both have been hurting because of the dry weather."

X-Rays Downtown

The Warren County Tuberculosis and Health Society portable X-ray unit will be in the business district of Warren during peak shopping hours today to provide free X-ray service. The van will be at Montgomery Wards from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.

But while the rain was helpful, it hasn't been enough to fully erase the severe moisture shortage.

"We're going to need normal rains from here on out in order to get a good crop this season. This has prevented further deterioration of the wheat, but not enough to insure a good crop," Wilson said.

The state-federal agricultural statistician for Nebraska, Kenneth Logan, said "this gives us precipitation that we didn't have before — if we can just keep it up." Nebraska had one of the driest October-March periods in 37 years.

In making its crop estimates for 1967 winter wheat, the Agriculture Department last December forecast Kansas at 250 million bushels — a yield of 19 bushels per seeded acre. On Monday, the department issued another forecast: 197 million bushels with a 15 bushel yield per acre.

Nationwide, the forecast had been 1.28 billion bushels in the hopeful December estimate. It was revised to 1.16 billion bushels. Even that yield would be a 10 per cent increase over last year's harvest but wheat acreage allotments were increased sharply for 1967.

Decisions

alone but for all developing countries, provided the other rich and industrialized countries of the world did the same.

There was, therefore, some criticism here that the specific programs proposed were not equal to the problems discussed, but there was general agreement on certain important though intangible, advantages. For one thing, the ideas of economic integration, regional development, and trade preferences for the poor nation, all of which have been discussed at length by the technicians of the various governments and hemispheric organization, have now been raised to the highest levels of political decision.

Some of the most controversial political issues of the hemisphere were omitted from the agenda. Though the population of Latin America is rising faster than that of any other part of the world, and is expected to increase from 200 million to 300 million in the next 10 years, the population question was scarcely mentioned publicly.

Nor was there much discussion of Fidel Castro's Cuba or the threat of Communist subversion. There were many ominous warnings that Latin America must create a revolution in freedom or have one forced upon it by totalitarian means, but a conscious decision was reached to play down these divisive political issues in order to concentrate on the positive hopes of economic integration and continental development.

Nevertheless, President Arosemena Gomez of Ecuador did break the drone of generalities yesterday morning by complaining that the U.S. had done more for its defeated enemies in the last year than for its neighbors and allies on this continent. Arosemena carried the issue further in the afternoon by suggesting that the "declaration" and "action program" before the presidents could not represent the wishes of the peoples of Latin America unless it were amended to call for more U.S. aid and better prices for Latin American products.

This was immediately opposed by the presidents of Costa Rica, Venezuela, Colombia, Mexico, and by Frei of Chile who made an eloquent appeal to Arosemena to settle for "attainable reality" and not "clutch for the moon."

There has been great emphasis here on the need to improve the means of communication among the countries of the continent, and on the urgency of moving forward on regional projects common to several but not all Latin American countries. Thus, the action plan stated:

"The economic integration of Latin America demands a vigorous and sustained effort to complete and modernize the physical infrastructure of the region. It is necessary to build a land transport network and improve all types of transport systems to facilitate the movement of persons and goods throughout the hemisphere; to establish an adequate and efficient telecommunications system and interconnected power systems; and jointly to develop international watersheds from their regions and economic areas that include the territory of two or more countries." One of the projects now under urgent study is to complete a communications satellite network and build ground stations that would provide continent-wide television and even enable a citizen of one country to make a telephone call to another country without paralyzing his lungs.

used for black market operations.

The spokesman said that the bank had notified U.S. military authorities of any suspected black market operations, but "we haven't been able to get them to do anything about it."

The bank said that the "main hold-up" in a complete separation of military and commercial banking facilities had been its own inability to provide for a separate location.

Jamestown Offered Tract For Refuse Disposal Site

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — A 45-acre tract of land in the Town of Ellicott was offered to the city of Jamestown last night for a refuse disposal site during a lengthy meeting of city council's highway committee.

Arthur N. Bailey, a Jamestown attorney, told the committee that his client wishes to remain unidentified. He is willing to allow the city to use his property located on Fluvanna ave. ext. just outside the city in the Town of Ellicott as a refuse disposal area.

Bailey indicated that his client will not charge the city any rent for the use of the property, but wants the city to pay the taxes which amount to $2,400 a year. In addition, the Town of Ellicott man wants the city of purchase fill dirt from him instead of transporting it in from the outside.

Private engineering studies, Bailey noted, indicate that the site meets the standards established by the Chautauqua County Department of Health. The offer comes only three days after bids for a new refuse collection and disposal contract were to have been opened, but none were received.

DPW director Joseph Veale indicated that the uncertain status of the present city-owned dump on Fluvanna ave. was apparently the reason most contractors refrained from bidding. The specifications for the new contract called for the contractor to provide the disposal site as well as collect the garbage.

Saigon's Troops Play Double Role

By BOB GASSAWAY
SAIGON (AP) — A Viet Cong-Vietnamese fight in the Mekong Delta last night underlined the fact the Saigon government's armed forces are carrying on afield despite diversion of troops for pacification work. Military sources said a government battalion of about 500 infantrymen established heavy battle contact with a larger guerrilla force 130 miles south of Saigon in coastal Ba Xuyen Province. A battalion was reported being rushed in as reinforcements.

While casualties of the other allies and the Communists declined in generally limited action last week, South Vietnam's went up. A spokesman said 284 Vietnamese were killed in combat, against 211 in the previous week. An unannounced number died along with 10 Americans in battling Communist raiders April 6 at Quang Tri, capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province.

With 430,000 American servicemen now directly involved in the war, the U.S. Command and 177 were killed, 1,345 wounded and three missing in action last week. Losses in the week of March 26-April 1 had been 194 killed and 1,679 wounded.

Of the other allies 16 were killed, down two. Viet Cong and North Vietnamese dead were recorded as 1,478, a sharp drop from the 2,449 of the previous week.

In an unusual procedure, a spokesman for Gen. William C. Westmoreland's command made a point of announcing American casualty totals for the war. He said 8,931 had been killed and 52,946 wounded in action since 1961. In the past newsmen have kept track of such figures unofficially with week-by-week tabulations.

In addition to battle losses, 18 Americans died last week from accidents and other causes classified as nonhostile. That brought the total for the war in this category to 1,877.

Enemy strength in the south was estimated to remain at 287,000 men, with recruits and infiltrators replacing casualties.

Communist forces temporarily tied up truck transportation of ammunition and other supplies from Da Nang to military posts along Highway 1 up to near the demilitarized zone by wrecking two bridges before dawn.

Floating explosives blasted down two of the five spans in a quarter-mile-long road and railway bridge six miles above Da Nang that was guarded by a force of 45 U.S. Marines. Mortar shells knocked out a smaller structure near Quang Tri, 20 miles south of the border. The Marines suffered no casualties.

MARKS NEW U.S. POLICY

Johnson Gambles on Latin American Maturity

By BARNARD L. COLLIER

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay—President Johnson is gambling that the nations of Latin America are now mature enough not to throw a tantrum when the United States comes to town without a handsome gift.

This marks a new departure in U.S. policy toward Latin America. It appears clear from the comments of high-ranking U.S. officials that a new criteria, and a stern one, has been established in Washington by which to judge how much help Latin America is to receive in the future.

Performance now appears to be paramount. There will be little room in the minds of those who make Latin American policy from excuses from those nations that do not make the most serious effort to solve their own economic and social problems with the considerable resources available.

President Johnson brought no gifts to the summit. He did not, as most people here expected him to, unwrap a surprise package. Instead, he made promises conditioned on how well, in the next several years, Latin America makes good on its own promises to unify, integrate and show true social progress.

The initial reaction from the Latin Americans here was surprise. Most expected a present from Washington. Some demanded one.

In the negotiations preceding the summit meeting, most Latin Americans looked forward to some sort of U.S. concession that would produce bold headlines and give the illusion, at least, of immense success to an historic gathering. But President Johnson's words rang no bells, and there is a nagging feeling of disappointment here on that account. But certainly not any gloom.

It is not at all unlikely, say U.S. officials here, that Johnson will still find a way to offer Latin America some of the concessions on trade and aid which he promised to study and pursue. But in his remarks, the President also stressed that such decisions will be based on "the follow-up actions which you take in the months ahead."

With few exceptions, there seems to be an understanding by Latin American leaders of President Johnson's position.

"I think it is a positive thing for the Latins that President Johnson did not give away anything," said a Venezuelan diplomat. "I cannot say that we did not expect more than his promises to try, because we did. But we know he is tied up at home on what he can do."

A Uruguayan diplomat remarked that "in some strange way the United States seems to be getting sympathy . . . I think the politicians here recognize the problems of another politician."

On the other side, and almost alone, is Ecuador. Its president, Otto Arosemena Gomez, went out of his way in his formal speech yesterday to castigate the U.S. for not doing more to help the Latin nations. His delegation reflects the same position.

But the case of Ecuador is an outstanding example, as far as American officials here are concerned, of a nation that does little or nothing to help itself. One does not have to press hard to get a State Department official to point out that Ecuador's government is at its most efficient when it uses Alliance for Progress aid to enrich its politicians, not its people. "Just ask them," snapped one State Department official, "how they are doing in increasing tax collections, or in land reform, or anything else that's a sign of progress. They're doing nothing."

Conversely, many State Department officials here go out of their way to compliment the Latin American nations for trying to halt the inflation, establishing realistic rates of currency exchange, making a start on land redistribution, and using some of their own tax money to meet budgetary needs. What with Vietnam, the balance-of-payment deficit, the increasing balking of the Congress, President Johnson could not be expected to come here with a pocketful of miracles.

Many Latin Americans see the United States' new performance first policy as a matter of President Johnson's sudden inability to produce first. Still, the change is generally regarded as healthy, here. The summit was billed in advance as Latin America's own and now it truly seems to be.

Court Asked to Begin Liquidation Proceedings

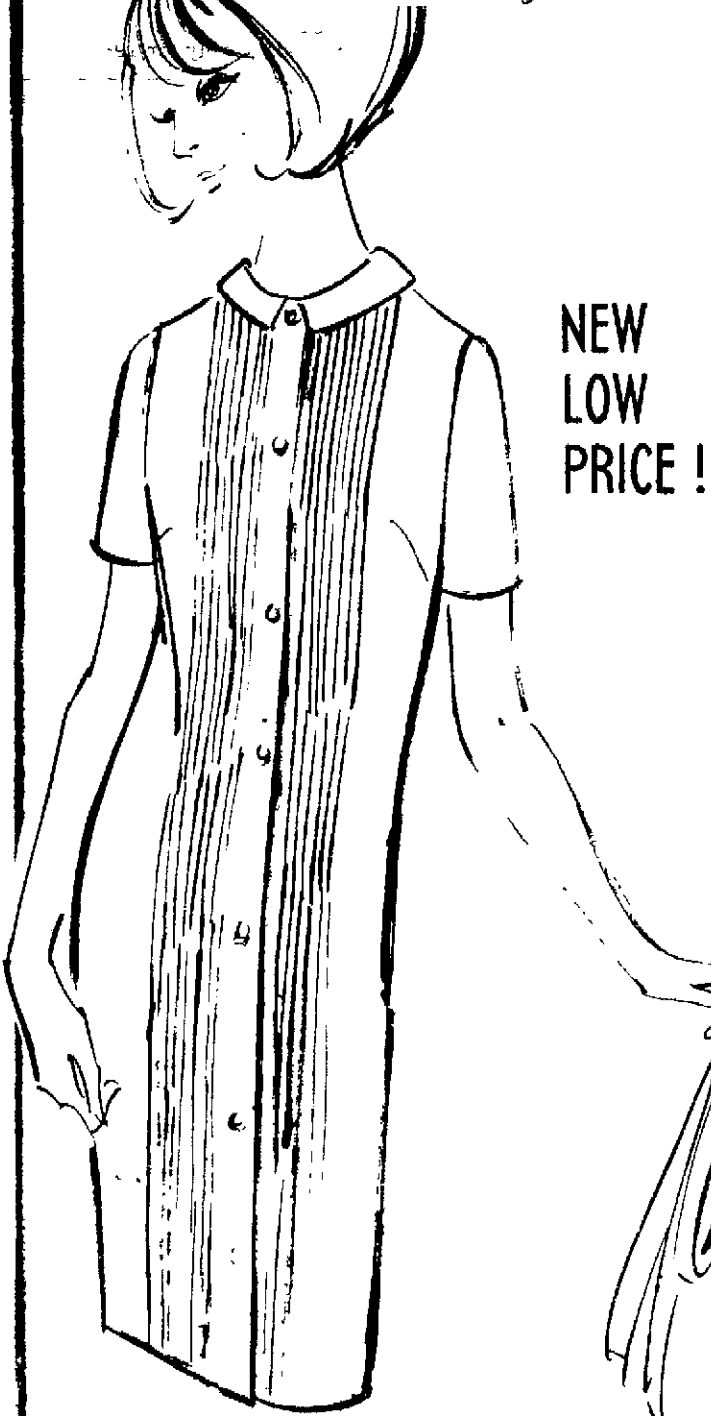

HARRISBURG (AP) — Commonwealth Court was asked yesterday to start proceedings toward the liquidation of two Philadelphia insurance firms which already are under orders to cease doing business in Pennsylvania.

The petitions seeking the appointment of statutory liquidators were filed by State Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell against Safeguard Mutual Insurance Co. and Sylvania Mutual Insurance Co.

Earlier this week, Maxwell issued an order directing Safeguard to cease doing business in the state, explaining that the firm "in my judgment, is financially unstable and its practices are not in the best interests of the policyholders and claimants."

Sylvania was ordered to cease business transactions last Dec. 27 by then Insurance Commissioner Audrey Kelly.

A Recreation Bonanza?

Too little! Too late!
Is this to be the history of the Kinzua Dam's recreational potential?

Perhaps not, but present indications aren't too promising.

For one thing, the master plan for the Allegheny Reservoir Recreation Area estimated that the total number of visits in 1967, the first year the reservoir would be of full use to the public, would be 1,077,200. That a 2-million figure would not be reached until 1976.

Yet a check of the overlooks at the dam site last year conducted by the Corps of Engineers produced a count of 670,000 by early September. The counters were removed at the time work was started by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways to remove overhanging rock in the vicinity of the overlooks and Route 59 was restricted to limited traffic.

Sightseers continued to pour into the area, however, and considering the large number of visits that were made at the time the leaves were changing, officials believe that another 200,000 could be added to this total.

This, they point out, indicates that with the wide publicity the Kinzua Dam area has had in national media, and the fact that the reservoir will be at an operational level this year, a substantial increase over last year's figures can be expected. Perhaps as much as double last year's estimated 870,000. Or very close to the estimated 1976 total in the master plan.

This poses a serious operational problem. With one parking lot presently occupied by construction activity and the parking area of the overlook limited in size, a "bottle-neck" condition is created that interferes with the movement of through traffic on Route 59.

In addition, a further check of the master plan indicates that the early visitor is likely to find that a highly publicized recreational area has no recreational facilities in the immediate vicinity.

Wolf Run marina and Kinzua Beach are scheduled for completion by June 1967. Casual observation, however, indicates that a considerable amount of work remains to be done at both locations before they will be reasonably ready for satisfactory recreational use.

The camper will find he is forced to travel many miles from the dam site to find a place to pitch his tent or park his trailer. And on pleasurable weekends even the picnicker may have trouble locating a vacant picnic table.

In short, the early visitor, even perhaps the mid-season visitor, will be limited to a view of the dam and a visit to Jake's Rocks and Rimrock after traveling many miles with the expectation of finding a recreational bonanza at the end of this trip.

Too little! Too late!—Perhaps not, but maybe.

A STORY IN CONTRASTS—When Governor Shafer presented his budgetary proposal to the Legislature this week, it was a bit of a far cry from a similar budget presentation a year ago by then Governor William Warren Scranton.

For example, while Mr. Shafer appeared in person before the assembled legislature, Mr. Scranton last year (in February) merely sent his home over to the House and Senate—without benefit of personal appearance.

(Actually this wasn't viewed as anything particularly unusual in view of the fact that it was a more or less routine end-of-term document, as opposed to the "first" of the Shafer's series this week.)

Another difference: Governor Shafer appeared before a joint session this week that found both House and Senate within the grasp of pro-administration forces (although by only two seats in the House) while Mr. Scranton's fiscal document last year was greeted by a House firmly in anti-administration Democratic hands.

Last year House Democrats, immediately following the budget presentation announced plans for "thoroughly combing" the record budget with the idea of whittling $50 to $75 million from the monster and possibly cutting the five per cent sales tax. Because they then controlled the House, their threat was not taken lightly.

This week, a similar determination to look closely at the budget on the part of anti-administration Democrats was voiced but it had a hollow ring. As the minority party this year they don't even have the power to pick their teeth, let alone pick the budget apart—that is, unless they find three Republican lawmakers independent enough to climb the fence.

COAL ON THE MOVE—Pennsylvania coal apparently gets around! According to the State Department of Internal Affairs this week, in the year ending April 1, 1966 there were 12.4 million tons of anthracite shipped from Pennsylvania mines, with Pennsylvania itself consuming 51.3 per cent of the total.

What happened to the remainder? New York received 13.4 per cent; Canada, 3.6 per cent; other foreign countries, 10.5 per cent; New Jersey, 9.2 per cent; the Lake States, 2.7 per cent; south Atlantic States, 3 per cent; New England, 2.6 per cent and other states, 2.7 per cent.

FOR SCIENCE TEACHERS ONLY—Once again the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association is conducting its annual search for outstanding science teachers in Pennsylvania.

Purpose of the program, according to the Department of Public Instruction, is to identify and select science teachers from all areas of the state "who deserve recognition for their outstanding achievement." Elementary, junior high and senior high school teachers are eligible.

Certificates of Merit will be presented during American Education Week in November, based on nominations (which should be sent to Dr. H. C. Kranzer, College of Education, Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa.).

SIGNS OF SPRING (et al.)—Some fifty-odd events are scheduled for this week end (Saturday and Sunday) throughout various parts of Pennsylvania, many with a touch of spring in 'em!

For example: Tomorrow at Tech Memorial Auditorium in Erie there will be the "Spring Festival of Ballet." . . Also tomorrow at the nearby Hershey Rose Gardens and Arboretum: the opening of "tulip time," featuring some 30,000 tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, forsythia, flowering crabs, etc. . . And, Sunday will be the Phipps Flower Show, at the Phipps Conservatory, Pittsburgh.

NATO —

Cost

And Value

BRUNSSUM, Holland — Pollyannas don't help NATO by saying things are better every time the Alliance gets kicked in the teeth. After General DeGaulle ordered Allied troops and headquarters evicted, a distinguished American argued this was beneficial because it provoked needed reforms. General Lemnitzer, NATO's Supreme Commander, commented: "One more benefit of this sort and we'll be out of business."

Defense Secretary McNamara recently said the move from France had saved money without "significantly degrading combat efficiency." This statement only shows again that cost effectiveness is not necessarily a good yardstick.

These bewilderments become evident when one visits the new headquarters of NATO's central sector. General Von Kielmansegg, Sector Commander and holder of the most important Allied post awarded a German, is assigned to deter or repel any Soviet attack between Switzerland and the Baltic. The prospect of such an onslaught is remote today, but will it forever remain so?

Kielmansegg says: "You cannot calculate everything in terms of figures and reckon only with computers. We need cost effectiveness, of course, but you don't base decisions for defense exclusively on cost effectiveness."

The German General thinks three prime factors should be calculated in reckoning defense: the fighting value of military forces, their cost value and their deterrent value. McNamara seems obsessed by the second item. Most generals are primarily concerned with the first. Kielmansegg stresses the third.

For him, "deterrent value" means the possibility of immediate and effective defense. Thus a Minuteman rocket has exceptionally high deterrent value. An Allied division in Europe has real deterrent value, but an Allied division in the U.S. has none.

Many Europeans, both civilian and military, see American cost effectiveness calculations as leading inevitably to a sizable reduction in numbers of U.S. troops in Europe. Despite denials, this process is getting slowly under way.

Yet Kielmansegg says: "The presence of American troops for the man in the street, is the only visible guarantee that the U.S.A. is prepared to defend Europe. If numbers of American troops were withdrawn, this would not only upset the man in the street; the other side, Russia, would see a deep significance. If U.S. troops were materially reduced on the assumption that a symbolic U.S. presence was enough, that would be most dangerous. The other side doesn't deal in symbols, only in realities."

Nobody detects crisis in the air right now, but can one assume that situation will endure? Kielmansegg says 80 to 82 per cent of all Soviet armed strength remains in European Russia and there has been no indication of troop withdrawals to face the threat of China or to balance Allied cuts.

Planners are disturbed by talk of pulling out U.S. units on the assumption they can be flown back in time of emergency. In 1964 an American division was thus flown in for the "big lift" maneuver and its previously stored equipment was swiftly turned over to it by Seventh Army logistical troops.

But this was an unreal exercise. Kielmansegg reckons any wartime "big lift" must be accomplished before the first shot is fired; otherwise planes can't come in safely. Many logistical troops, so important in 1964, have already been paraded off the Seventh Army roster.

Furthermore, some Europeans wonder if, under pressure, an American president would take the vital military and political decision to send two or three divisions back to Europe in an emergency, once they have been withdrawn. And would a U.S. government intent of saving money keep divisions intact in America after pulling them out of Europe?

All these issues now trouble NATO commanders. The writing on the wall is clear: further cuts. Yet, officially, NATO's strategy is to plan defense on the assumption of non-nuclear war. The fewer the troops left in Europe, the more paradoxical such planning is.

Maybe the allies are approaching the conclusion that NATO is no longer needed, or maybe the U.S. now thinks Asia should have priority in defense budgeting. If so, someone should tell the generals. It is also time to cease lifting the morale of taxpayers at the expense of the morale of soldiers by claiming we are getting more for our defense dollar in Europe than we did before. People who talk like this may know the cost of the Alliance, but they don't understand its value.

Ambition and Jealousy

WASHINGTON — On January 29, Peruvian troops were reported concentrating on the Ecuadorian border. A flurry of worry went through the Ecuadorian foreign office, accompanied by bitter headlines in the Ecuadorian press warning that Peru might be ready, once again, to pounce on her weaker neighbor.

Real fact was that the Peruvian troop maneuvers were ordered for internal consumption. President Fernando Belaunde of Peru, though a farsighted statesman, and personally friendly to Ecuador, is nevertheless subservient to the Peruvian military. The military grandstanding was ordered to please the Peruvian army.

Meanwhile, in every Ecuadorian school hangs a poster showing the bloody hand of Peru cutting a slice out of the heart of Ecuador — the rich area around the headwaters of the Amazon. The poster keeps alive the Ecuadorian ambition to take that slice back.

The above illustrates the chief problem of Latin America — suspicion, jealousy and too much nationalism. If President Johnson and the Pan American presidents assembled at Punta del Este can make even a small start toward the hemispheric cooperation originally preached by the great liberator Simon Bolivar, their meeting will have been worthwhile.

Actually Peru and Ecuador have much in common. Both are 90 per cent Indian, both have the same basic economy, and both need to work together to develop the headwaters of the Amazon. If the tributaries to the Amazon which flow down from the high Andes can be harnessed in a series of lakes, there can be transportation from Peru and Ecuador all the way to the Atlantic Ocean.

Already there is basic understanding between the Peruvian and Ecuadorian people. It crops out in various ways. When the Ecuadorian and Chilean soccer teams played in Lima for the 1966 championship, the Peruvian crowd cheered for the Ecuadorian team. When Paraguay played against Ecuador in soccer in Guayaquil, the man entrusted with fair play to both sides, the referee, was Peruvian.

Recently Ecuadorian and Peruvian girls have been touring Colombia playing basketball against each other. Ecuadorian musicians and writers visiting Lima were accorded warm receptions. You will find that some of the cab drivers in Lima come from Ecuador. There is no animosity between any of the people in the lower rank of life.

Nor is there basic animosity at the very top. President Belaunde when he was getting a divorce went to live in Ecuador. And Ecuadorians not only received him cordially but helped him establish a weekly religious newspaper. Now elected president of Peru, Belaunde would like to improve relations with Ecuador, but the Peruvian military are the chief stumbling block.

They are also the chief stumbling block in the path of better relations with either Chile or

Way to Practice Charity

The lights were low. The ladies applied themselves to the exotic food and mewed at each other. Joe E. Lewis, who looks like a ripe apple that has been dropped once, asked the troubadour to sing "Sorrento." The singer was a middle-aged man who strolled with a violinist and an accordionist through the tables at Casa Santino. He nodded, Lewis dipped into his pocket and yanked out a bill. A rosary fell to the floor.

"I thought you were Jewish," I said. He leaned down and lifted the beads from the floor. "I am," he said. "My family was Orthodox, which is making the four the hard way." He dug in to a plate of baked clams. They had rare little goodies on them and an irresistible sauce. "It's good for a guy to touch another base now and then," he said.

Lewis is the only man who slurs his speech sober. He is short and dark, a sophisticated star of night clubs. To actors, he's a love. To bookies, he's a living. To an audience of drunks, he's a drunk. The harshest word he has ever said about another man is: "In his case, I plead the fifth."

How about that rosary? He called Benny, the maitre d', and ordered more clams. He asked Kelly and Virginia Lee to join him in belting another belt. He didn't talk about the rosary. Instead, he asked if I remembered Jack Malloy. I remembered. He was a Chicago editor.

"One night," said Lewis slowly, "I am at the Chez Paree and Jack is there with a crowd. He sends word to I sing 'As Time Goes By.' I tell the piano player to toss it in the reper-

Bolivia. President Belaunde is a close personal friend of President Frei of Chile. He has also received a cordial visit from President Barrientos of Bolivia. But the Peruvian military nurses a secret ambition to take back that part of northern Chile which it claims was wrested away from Peru in the War of the Pacific.

Today there are no diplomatic relations between Chile and Bolivia, yet these two nations need each other perhaps even more than do Ecuador and Peru. The northern deserts of Chile could be made to bloom like a garden if water from the lakes and rivers of Bolivia high in the Andes was available. Water from Lake Titicaca, which now evaporates in part, could be harnessed to irrigate the southern deserts of Peru.

In return, Bolivia wants an outlet to the sea on the Pacific Coast; a small, 10-mile square city where the Gulf Oil Company can set up an oil refinery instead of shipping crude all the way to California.

At the recent Foreign Ministers' Conference in Buenos Aires, astute Mexican Foreign Minister Antonio Carrillo Flores invited Foreign Minister Alberto Crespo Gutierrez of Bolivia to a private luncheon with Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes of Chile.

The two men got along extremely well but were unable to translate this cooperation back to their respective governments. When President-elect Barrientos visited Washington last July as the guest of the International Platform Association, he had a private luncheon with Chilean Ambassador Radomiro Tomic. They too got along famously.

And when President Johnson flew to the LBJ ranch with the Latin American diplomatic corps, he was careful to invite Ambassador Tomic of Chile and Bolivian Ambassador Julio Sanjines to lunch with him on the plane. They chatted cordially.

However, diplomatic relations between Chile and Bolivia continue to be nil. The two countries' presidents and ambassadors and foreign ministers speak to each other, but the two governments do not.

And not long ago U. S. Ambassador Ralph Dungan in Santiago was reproached by the Chilean government over a report that the United States had placed rockets in the hands of the Bolivian army high up in the Andes which were aimed at Chile down below. Ambassador Dungan had to show the Chilean government a classified list of exactly what military aid we had given Bolivia before Chilean suspicions were allayed. No U. S. rockets had been given to Bolivia.

When Simon Bolivar, the great liberator, freed Bolivia, Peru, Chile, Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela from Spanish rule, he begged them to remain united, not pull apart. The national rivalries which resulted when they ignored his advice have continued to plague the Southern Hemisphere since. President Johnson at Punta del Este can help to allay some of this jealousy if he doesn't listen to the technicians who want only to talk about economics and education.

toire somewhere, and we go on with our drinking and singing. I am in the middle of 'As Time Goes By' when I hear some loud coughing and the piano stops. "Naturally, I ask the accompanist what the hell he is thinking about. He points to Malloy's table and I see a bunch of waiters, who never did an honest day's work, carrying Jack out. In a few minutes, I get the word that he's dead. Ticker. "End of show. Close the joint. I feel bad, because he did lots of favors for me and all he asked for was a song. And it is no state secret that I go around the corner to the undertaker."

"There's a custodian on duty to make sure everybody remains gift wrapped. I slip him twenty and ask to see Jack Malloy. He opens the door and I go in, and already they have Malloy laid out in a new suit and tie. So I haul off where I left off and sing the rest of 'As Time Goes By.'" Then I pat him on the hand and say: 'Jack, you know nobody walks out when I sing.'"

He found some prosciutto and melon left on a platter, and Mr. Santino lifted it delicately and placed it on Mr. Lewis' plate. Joe had a small stroke a few moons ago. It did no great damage, but left him depressed. Now he is back on cornflakes smothered in Scotch.

"I will never part with that rosary," he said. "Never. I use it to remember a nice guy I never knew. I'm in New York about twenty years ago and someone introduces me to a priest. This guy is so handsome he makes Tyrone Power look like a rusty hatchet. Now what am I going to do with a priest? The nearest I ever got to a church is in a passing cab."

Least-Favored Doctrined

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay — President Johnson is beginning to apply to Latin America some of the theories and tactics of his domestic policy in the United States. He has been against a system of trade preferences for the Latin American or any other nations in the past, but he seemed to be saying here that poor nations, like poor people at home, may require special preferences if they are ever to overcome the economic and social consequences of poverty.

"We are ready," he told the other American chiefs of state yesterday, "to explore with other industrialized countries — and with our people — the possibility of temporary preferential tariff advantages for all developing countries in the markets of all the industrialized countries."

"We recognize," he told them privately Wednesday, "that comparable tariff treatment may not always permit developing countries to advance as rapidly or remarkably, so we suggest that the poor need more help than the rich."

But Washington's trade policy has been based on the equal or "most favored nation" doctrine for years. Now Johnson seemed to be flirting with what might be called "the least favored nation doctrine" — giving the poor nations not merely the same advantages as the most favored nation but special advantages not available to the rich nations of the world. As in his "war on poverty" in the U.S., Johnson is trying to get away from providing handouts or dols for some of the poor but is thinking of a temporary general trade preference for all poor countries designed to help them earn their own way.

Whether this proves to be more than a doctrinal amendment depends, of course, on the Congress of the United States and the governments of the other industrialized countries. Britain has been in favor of a generalized preference policy for the developing nations. The common market countries of Europe are divided on it, France particularly favoring regional trade preferences in Europe for the African and Mideastern countries. And the President made clear that his suggestion of preferences depended on support of all rich nations.

Also, it is clear at this conference that the delegates and observers differ on the value of trade preferences for the poor nations. Raul Prebisch, secretary general of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, thought President Johnson's declaration was of "tremendous importance."

But even some of Washington's own experts on trade fear that most nations in this part of the world are so far behind the industrial nations that even with trade preferences they will have difficulty competing in the markets of the industrial nations.

Congressional leaders were widely consulted about suggesting trade preference before President Johnson made his announcement here. Most gave their approval in advance, but the fear of competition on the American market from products produced by low-wage labor is still strong. In any event, it will take a long period of negotiation and legislation before any system of trade preferences for the poor nations can be adopted.

Therefore, the question about President Johnson's policies in the hemisphere is not very different from the insistent questions about some of his poverty programs at home. Nobody argues either place that the poor can compete effectively with the rich. Few would prefer to deal with the poor in either place on the basis of subsistence handouts that merely perpetuate poverty.

And the political leaders here, like the political leaders in U.S. cities, have been warning everybody about the dangers to civil order and even political freedom if these poor and crowded areas of the world do not make visible progress.

The main question, however, is whether the programs are adequate to the problems. This is really what worries the delegates here, as it worries the mayors of our urban slums.

Economic integration in Latin America is as difficult and costly a problem as integrating the races in the U.S. Preferences for the poor in the U.S. have been operating for years but the trend toward disintegration in the American city slums continues.

So we have another chapter in the rhetorical war on poverty in Latin America, similar in tone and tactic to the dreams of a great society at home. But the money is not available for this war on a scale equal to the problem.

SYLVIA PORTER

1967 vs. Recession

Industrial production in this country has slumped much more so far in 1967 than in the initial three months of the recession of 1957 or the initial three months of the recession of 1960. Manufacturers' sales have sagged much more in this period than in July-September, 1957 or May-July, 1960—and these three-month periods, mind you, marked the beginning of the two most recent recessions.

How, then, can any one argue that this is only a phase of slow-down and not the start of the fifth recession of post-World War II?

Because the dramatic weaknesses today are primarily in manufacturing and within manufacturing, primarily in autos, steel and appliances. Because the downturns have not swept across the economy, become widespread or deep enough to warrant the recession label. Because in the face of major softening in manufacturing, total personal incomes have continued to rise to new peaks, employment overall has remained high and the unemployment rate, even during February's obvious sluggishness, stuck at a low 3.7 per cent.

The one thing the four previous post-war recessions in the U.S. had in common was a steep jump in the unemployment rate into the 6 per cent range. While a rise in today's jobless rate is a virtual certainty, it still seems improbable that it will approach the 6 per cent level.

A nationally respected private economist measures recessions by these three yardsticks: magnitude of decline, duration of decline, scope of decline. On the basis of these yardsticks, this authority will not yet call this a recession.

A leading U.S. Government economist uses this yardstick: a decline for two successive quarters—a half-year—in real Gross National Product ("real" meaning that the contribution of price increases to the total value of all we produce is eliminated.) On the basis of this rule-of-thumb, this authority is confident the first half of 1967 will not be recorded as a recession.

Whether or not you, personally, consider this a recession depends on where you live and what you do. For instance, if you are a laid-off auto worker, or dependent on this worker for your profits, you will insist this is as bad a slump as any of recent years. But if you are a worker in the services, employed full-time and earning the highest paycheck ever, you will say this is your best year to date.

Regardless of labels, though, today's economy is certainly a "smorgasbord." The following table will show you how 1967 compared with the opening months of the official recessions of 1957 and 1960. (Percentage changes.)

INDICATOR	July-Sept. 1957	May-July 1960	Feb. 1967
Personal income	+ 0.2 pct.	+ 0.3 pct.	+ 1.3 pct.
Non-farm payroll employ.	- 0.4	- 0.3	+ 0.6
Retail sales	+ 0.3	+ 1.1	+ 1.1
Housing starts	no chg.	- 1.0	+ 0.7
Unemploy. rate	4.2 to 4.4	5.1 to 5.5	3.7 — 3.7
Construct. expend.	+ 2.3	- 0.4	+ 2.5
Manufacturers' sales	- 0.8	+ 0.9	- 3.5
Industrial production	- 1.3	- 0.7	- 1.9

The sharp cutbacks in production reflect businessmen's current efforts to clear their shelves of excessive goods. In automobiles particularly, the inventory adjustment is well under way, laying the basis for a later pickup. The sluggishness in retail sales reflects the extraordinarily high rate of savings by consumers today. With latest surveys revealing a marked rise in consumer confidence, a return to more normal spending patterns could be ahead.

And the fundamental point of all is, as I have been reporting, that while they are not calling this a recession, both the Federal Government and the Federal Reserve System are fighting whatever it is with some of our country's most powerful anti-recession weapons. Their aim: from slowdown to upturn before 1967 ends.

Potpourri

Unless we get a bad break in the weather, area streams should be in ideal condition for the opening day of trout season. At the time I am writing this they are running clear and not too high. In fact, just about the way the average fisherman wants them to be in the early part of the season.

They are still plenty cold, though, and there is little chance they will warm up much before Saturday morning. This means that most bait and lures will have to be fished deep. Bumped right on the bottom, no doubt, to get the best action. For even the brookies and rainbows will be reluctant to move out of their way too far to grab a passing morsel.

But the streams are well stocked this year, so some decent action should be had by those fortunate enough to come with an answer as to what they are "taking." Worms will, of course, be the most popular bait, but the usual number will be using salmon eggs and perhaps cheese. Minnows should be a good bet, too.

Personally, I don't think streamers and spinning hardware will be at their best with the present water conditions. They have to be worked too fast to be highly efficient with trout that are still in their winter stupor. But I'm probably wrong and someone will come up with a record catch just to prove I am.

However, my personal choice with the waters the way they are would be wet flies weighted with enough lead to make them travel deep. And I would go back to the "good old days" by fishing flies to a cast as the oldtimers did. I think this is an outstanding method for early season trout, and there is no more thrilling way to get your action. Especially if the trout are hitting the dropper fly as it bounces along on the surface. To my way of thinking, this method can't be beat for the first two weeks of the season.

But I have noticed that some March Browns have been hatching, and this means that there's a possibility that even the dry fly fisherman could get some action on Saturday. I've seen some pretty good catches made with a dry fly with water conditions just as they are right now. Not often but sometimes.

So who knows what the best bait or lure will be for the opening day? No, me, I can assure you.

One thing for the trout fisherman to remember this year is that the limit on Chapman Dam (because of new regulations) is just six trout. In fact, this is the limit on all lakes of stocked trout in the state. But you can, of course, still keep eight trout on the streams.

Don't trust your luck too far! Ken Corey, our local fish warden who has been laid up for a time with a reluctant ticker, is just about to get back on his feet and start moving around. And while Ken will hardly be greeting his many friends personally along the streams for awhile, he'll be directing his corps of deputy wardens on how to pick off the occasional law-breaker in a professional manner.

Ken especially wants fishermen to be careful about litter-bugging this year. There's nothing will cause fishing streams to be posted any quicker than some carelessly scattered litter, and there's nothing ruins the aesthetic beauty of our woodlands, either.

It has a name! The fish hatchery that will be built at the Kinzua Dam at some time in the future and is presently on the planning boards of the Fish and Wildlife Service, has been named the Allegheny National Fish Hatchery. No construction date has been set, but the fact that it has an official name is encouraging.

Joe Broccardy, formerly located in Warren with the Fish and Wildlife Service, is moving right up the ladder. Joe was recently promoted to assistant regional director Division of Fisheries Services in the Boston office. He will be replaced at state level by Tom Grouatze with headquarters at the Lamar hatchery.

An outdoor program that could be of interest to area outdoorsists will be initiated on Station WSEE-TV Friday evening at 11:25 p.m. The weekly feature that will continue throughout the summer months will be called "Fleet-wing Forecasts" and cover various things that could be of interest to campers, fishermen, boaters, and even pleasure drivers. Director of the program has indicated some interest in coverage of the Warren area.

"The one weapon that every man, - soldier, sailor, and airman- should be able to use effectively, is the rifle . . . If the National Rifle Association is bringing this kind of training and knowledge to the men who will one day become either officers or enlisted men, it is doing them and the country a service of incalculable value." Club Plans Project to Help Youth

The Warren Field and Stream Club held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday in the Hospitality Room of the Northwest Savings and Loan Building.

President Jack Skinner reported that Ken Corey, who was not present due to an illness, said that all the streams in the county were well stocked for the first day of trout fishing. Corey told Skinner that the Pennsylvania Game Commission's water craft safety man from Erie will be at the Kalbfus Club on April 25, May 2 and 9 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. He will give a program on boating safety. This will be for the general public.

Corey reported that his men netted three albino northern pike last week in the Akeley swamp. One was sent to Bellefonte and two to the hatchery at Tionesta.

Dave Titus, Warren area game protector, reported a very successful beaver trapping season. The members were treated to some very interesting Beaver lore by Titus and a new insight into the trapping business as a sport.

Titus cautioned drivers that this is one of the worst months for deer sightings. He also said that the turkeys made it through the winter very well and hunters could expect a banner year.

Among the old business was a report on the Still Run work bee. Bud Jones said that the area in Hearts Content was in order.

Skinner said that the winter damage to the Pheasant Rearing pens had been repaired with the exception of new screening.

Tom Crozier announced that 27 memberships were sold at the Kiwanis Sports Show. The club passed out literature on the proposed gun laws at the show.

Under new business, a discussion was held and later passed on the financing of a member of the club to go to Washington before a subcommittee and testify as to the local interests. The club said that they would be willing to help on the local federation level.

A call list to mobilize the membership quickly was formulated. Steve Saylor was put in charge.

Third item was a community action program sponsored by the club. It would be a neighborhood youth corps project which will last 10 weeks, beginning this weekend.

Some of the projects which will be undertaken by the youth group will be rifle range work, brushing, clearing and seeding; pheasant rearing pens, maintenance and repair work; stream improvement work; and Chandlers Valley dam improvement.

The Warren Field and Stream Club will be responsible for supervision, transportation and tools for the project.

The youths are being paid through the Northern Appalachia Work Training program and are being screened by the local school's guidance officers under the direction of the local office of economic opportunity.

Cassius Denies Mom Bit, New Fight Site Possible

CHICAGO (AP) — The title fight between heavyweight champion Cassius Clay and Floyd Patterson still is in the works for April 25, possibly in Albuquerque, N.M., Clay's manager, Herbert Muhammad, said last night.

Muhammad said he had been approached constantly all day for a site for the match and that he was told by Robert Arum of New York, an attorney for Main Bout, Inc., that Gov. David F. Cargo of New Mexico welcomes the fight in Albuquerque.

"We are glad to find a government standing behind the constitution," said Muhammad. "Besides Albuquerque, we have offers from three other places, but I won't name them now."

"We are not seeking another fight," he said. "The champ doesn't need money, but it looks as if April 25 remains as a match between him and Patterson somewhere. But if not, I'm not going to lose any sleep over it."

Meanwhile, Clay squelched the report that he would enter military service as a reluctant draftee to please his mother.

As for his alleged comment at the Las Vegas airport that he would enter the Army for his mother's sake, Clay asserted:

"I didn't say that, I didn't say anything like that, I don't know how it got out. Somebody was trying to start something. That was something they wish I had said, but I said nothing like that."

Clay's plea for exemption on grounds he is a Black Muslim minister already has been rejected by draft officials.

The Associated Press got the Clay quote pertaining to his mother from a Las Vegas sports writer who said he didn't hear it himself but obtained it from a source connected with the Clay-Patterson fight who declined to be identified.

Meanwhile, as a Clay attorney yesterday sought in Washington an injunction from the U.S. Supreme Court to stop the champion's Army induction, rumors persisted the Clay-Patterson fight still might be held.

It was reported that the bout might be booked in some Mid-west city, but if such plans fail to jell within a day or two, the fight will be dropped.

Clay's manager previously had said plans for the fight were dropped after the Nevada and Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissions under directives by the governor of each state had chased the fight out of Las Vegas and Pittsburgh.

If the bout should develop, it probably would be offered for home television rather than closed circuit.

"I can't understand why Las Vegas can kick anything out when the city is knee deep in roulette and other legalized gambling devices," said Muhammad.

Clay's expounding of his religious beliefs coincided with two moves by his attorney, Hayden Covington, in Washington. Covington not only asked for a Supreme Court injunction to stop Clay's Army induction but also requested appointment of a three judge panel to consider Clay's original appeal against induction rejected by U.S. Dist. Judge James F. Gordon of Owensboro, Ky.

When it comes to the moment of induction decision, Clay said, "I must judge whether I fear Allah or the government."

Big O, Wilt Head NBA 'Star Squad'

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati was named to the National Basketball Association's All-Star team for the seventh straight time yesterday. He was joined on the 1966-67 squad by Elgin Baylor and Jerry West of Los Angeles, Rick Barry of San Francisco and Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia.

Only Baylor, among those chosen in a vote of sports writers and broadcasters in the league's 10 cities, was not a member of last year's first team. West was selected for the sixth consecutive season.

Named to the second team were Bill Russell, Boston's player-coach; Sam Jones, another Celtic; Jerry Lucas of Cincinnati; Hal Greer of Philadelphia and Willis Reed of New York.

Chamberlain, recently voted the circuit's Most Valuable Player, has placed on the first All-Stars six times and the second team twice since joining the NBA in 1960.

Each of the first team All-Stars will receive $500 while players on the second team get $250.

During the regular season, Philadelphia beat the Warriors 7 out of 9, but Sharman says all the games were close and that his Western kings aren't over-matched.

In addition to Barry, the Warriors' main hope rides with the ability of 6-11 Nate Thurmond to counteract Chamberlain, who led the league in rebounds and was third in assists. Chamberlain gets assistance from the slick shooting backcourt duo of Hal Greer and Wally Jones.

Hui Luke Jackson and Chet Walker give the 76ers one of the strongest front courts in NBA history.

OILERS TOO STRONG ON CINDERS

Eagles Defeated, 99-51 By Oil City Track Team

By LARRY G. STEELE Sports Editor

YOUNGSVILLE—For the second time in three days Youngsville's track and field team played host to a Class A team and found the visitor's depth in the running events too much to cope with.

Yesterday the Eagles took on Oil City and showed some improvement over Tuesday's meet with Warren, but still came away on the short end of the final team score, 99-51.

Although the charges of Coach Toby Shea again dominated the field events, the Oilers' experience and overall strength on the cinders made the difference.

The Red and White took first places in four of the field events and swept the discus, the top spot going again to big Gary Carter, who reached 131' 9 1/2" despite an injured ankle. Ron Knapp repeated as victor in the shot with a put of 47' 5" and Bruce Fitzgerald hung up his second straight triumph in the javelin with a 171' 7" effort.

Senior Kay Burleigh showed improvement in the long jump, hitting 19' 1" to take high honors in that event.

Youngsville's only first place on the track came in the two-mile relay. Bob Long, Milt Johnson, John Gallagher and Dave Danielson easily outdistanced the Oiler foursome with a 8:57.6 clocking.

After that it was all Oil City. John Cotherman sparked the Oilers by taking first places in both sprints and anchoring the winning 880-relay team. Cotherman's time in the 100-yard dash was a fine :10.3 and he turned in a :22.7 in the 220.

Bruce Barr, an Oiler star on the gridiron and the mats, handed Glenn Collins his first defeat of the year in the 440-yard dash, running the quarter in :53.6. Barr also anchored the winning mile relay team and took third in the shot.

Eagle sophomore Bob Long surprised teammate Milt Johnson in the half-mile, but finished behind Oiler Rick Weaver's 2:09.3, Johnson taking third.

George Nelson of Youngsville took a third in the 180-yard low hurdles, but was only two seconds off John Weaver's winning time of :22.7. The Oilers swept the high hurdles, San Dinger taking the top spot.

As expected, the visitors dominated the distance events. Sam Olmes, the Oiler ace, cruised to a 10:31.4 to cop the two-mile, but sat out the mile run, letting Dave Miller take the honors.

In the high jump, Bob Chisholm of the Eagles battled the Oilers' Tim Clifford, but failed to keep pace with the tall visitor at 5'9", the winning height.

The Oilers also added first places in the triple jump on Bill Kaufman's 38' 9" leap and Sam Dinger cleared 12' 4" to claim victory in the pole vault.

Youngsville hosts two meets next week, taking on Titusville on Tuesday, then cross-country rival Sheffield next Friday afternoon.

Clay's expounding of his religious beliefs coincided with two moves by his attorney, Hayden Covington, in Washington.

Covington not only asked for a Supreme Court injunction to stop Clay's Army induction but also requested appointment of a three judge panel to consider Clay's original appeal against induction rejected by U.S. Dist. Judge James F. Gordon of Owensboro, Ky.

When it comes to the moment of induction decision, Clay said, "I must judge whether I fear Allah or the government."

LISTEN

You've got to listen hard to hear a '67 Mercury—quietest outboard you can buy.

An exclusive "System of Silence" makes Mercury really quiet. A sound-isolating support frame attaches to the engine with heavy-duty rubber mounts. The entire engine cowl assembly rests on this frame. The powerhead is wrapped in an acoustically lined exterior cowling. Control and fuel line fittings are sealed with neoprene. Finally, the exhaust tube is surrounded with a sound-deadening "wall-of-water" jacket. And remember, Mercury was quieter than other outboards to begin with. Small-bore, short-stroke engine, internal reed valves deep within the crankcase, tighter-fitting parts and closer tolerances, Jet-Prop exhaust—that's designed-in quiet. Listen to the difference—at your Mercury dealer. '67 Mercury—engineered to stay ahead—quietly.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL ROUNDUP:

Mets Edge Buccos, 3-2; Orioles Bomb Twins, 7-1

Orioles-Twins
By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson socked two homers and Brooks Robinson one as the Baltimore Orioles crushed the Minnesota Twins 7-1 yesterday behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Palmer.

A slim crowd of 5,005 at Shea Stadium saw the Mets score their first victory of the season and end Vernon Law's long jinx over them.

Law, who relieved Woody Fryman in the fifth inning with the score tied 2-2, was rapped for the tie-breaking run with two out in the eighth.

Jerry Buchek, who hit a two-run homer off Fryman in the second inning, started the eighth with a single to left. He went to second on Jerry Grote's sacrifice and scored when Hiller, batting for the once-sore armed Estrada, doubled to right center.

The Pirates got their two runs off rookie right-hander Tom Seaver, Roberto Clemente singled home Matty Alou from second with the Buccs' first run in the third inning.

The Pirates got their other run off the fast but wild Seaver in the fourth. Seaver walked Jesse Gonder and hit Alou with a pitch. Maury Willis singled to left for the run.

Seaver fanned eight, walked four and hit two batters before he was relieved by Estrada, a former Baltimore Oriole, in sixth with two on and one out.

Willis bounced a single over second but Buchek made a fine play to prevent the ball from going into the outfield. Estrada then got Clemente to hit into a double play.

Estrada yielded two hits and no runs in 2-3 innings to gain the victory. Ron Taylor, a Canadian right-hander obtained from Houston, put the Pirates down in order in the ninth.

Law had defeated the Mets seven straight times.

Giants-Braves

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Willie Mays and Willie McCovey powered San Francisco to a 2-0 National League victory over Atlanta last night, slamming homers to back up the four hit pitching of Gaylord Perry.

The lean right-hander was never in trouble in his first start of the year, and didn't allow a hit until the fourth inning when Hank Aaron bounced a double off third baseman Jim Hart's glove.

The loss in the Braves' home opener watched by 33,225 was Atlanta's third straight setback. San Francisco evened its record at 1-1.

Mays pushed the Giants in front in the first inning, hitting the 543rd homer run of his career over the center field fence. McCovey boosted the margin with his homer in the fourth inning.

Both were hit off the Braves' Tony Cloninger, who lasted eight innings before he was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Reds-Astros

CINCINNATI (AP) — Deron Johnson drove in three runs, two with a decisive home run in the fifth inning, and carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros before a small crowd of 4,392 last night.

Johnson, who singled home a first inning run for a 1-1 tie, put the Reds ahead 5-1 with his homer off loser Dave Giusti.

Tony Perez broke the deadlock in the fourth inning with a solo homer and John Edwards followed with a run-scoring single after Leo Cardenas lunted safely and stole second base.

Milt Pappas, with relief help from Gerry Arrigo and Ted Abernathy, got the victory. He went 6-2-3 innings, gave up six hits and struck out eight before Sonny Jackson's single and a run-scoring double by Jim Landis for the final Houston run knocked him out in the seventh.

Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly in the first inning scored Jackson, who had singled, stole second and reached third on Cardenas' error.

Jackson opened a two-run Houston sixth with another single and later scored on a hit by Ed Madewe. The other tally came home or Bob Aspromonte's sacrifice fly.

BOSTON (AP) — Ron Hansen's bases-loaded double highlighted a five-run ninth inning rally that enabled the Chicago White Sox to beat Boston 3-5 in an error-filled baseball game yesterday.

Hansen's doublescored Tommie Agee and Tom McCraw, putting the White Sox ahead 6-5. Jerry Adair followed with a two-run single.

The Red Sox made three errors during the big inning, two by third baseman Joe Foy.

Boston had taken a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning on three unearned runs. After a single by Carl Yastrzemski, shortstop Ron Hansen and second baseman Adair committed consecutive errors to let one run in.

Rico Petricelli drove in the tying run with a single and Mike Ryan's single put the Red Sox in front.

There were seven errors in the game, five by Boston.

Don Buford drove in Chicago's first two runs, Pete Ward accounted for the third run with a homer in the fifth.

The White Sox, who lost the opener to Boston Wednesday, won only one game and lost eight in Fenway Park last season.

Montreal Nips Rangers In Sudden Death by 2-1

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Rugged John Ferguson broke up a fiercely checking game with a sudden death goal in an overtime period, lifting the rampaging Montreal Canadiens to a 2-1 victory and a four-straight sweep of their Stanley Cup semifinal series against the New York Rangers last night.

The Canadiens, winners of the Cup the last two years, thus move into the final round against the survivor of the Chicago-Toronto best-of-7 series, which is now tied at 2-2.

Ferguson charged into the Ranger zone with linemates Ralph Backstrom and Claude Larose 6 1/2 minutes into the overtime session. Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin slid out to stop Backstrom's shot, but was in no position to cover on the rebound.

Ferguson, who scored eight of his 20 regular season goals against New York, simply swept the puck into the gaping net.

Hot Stove Loop Extends Signup Needs Umpires

President Bob Pascuzzi of the Warren Ho. Stove League announced that 724 boys have registered for the upcoming season.

He stated that the registration would be held open until next Monday at 8:30 p.m. for any other boy wishing to join up.

A total of 58 sponsors have pledged their support.

There will be a meeting next Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Building. Equipment will be handed out at that time.

The Warren Hot Stove League is in need of umpires for the coming season. All persons interested in officiating games this summer are urged to contact Treasurer Nick Tomassoni at 723-4457.

Leafs Defeated By Black Hawks

TORONTO (AP) — Eric Nesternenko's tie-breaking goal in the third period helped carry the Chicago Black Hawks to a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs last night in the Stanley Cup playoffs, tying the best-of-7 semifinal series at two games each.

The fifth game will be played in Chicago tomorrow afternoon and the sixth in Toronto next Tuesday night.

If a seventh game is needed, it will be played in Chicago next Thursday night.

Sports of The Times Arthur Daley Keystone Comedy

NEW YORK—The timing was unfortunate to the point of embarrassment. The first—and last—publicity release on the Cassius Clay-Floyd Patterson fight came bouncing blithely into the office from Las Vegas, Nev. With a slight bit of editing the first sentence tells the entire story. The editorial insertion appears in capitals and here's the way the revised version would have read:

"Never in heavyweight history has a heavyweight title match been signed, sealed, launched and CANCELED more quickly than the upcoming rematch between Muhammad Ali and Floyd Patterson."

It was the cancellation that let all the wind out of the ballyhoo balloon. The original press notice was accurate enough when written but on the very day it arrived, it was an empty document. Gov. Paul LaRocca of Nevada, striving to protect whatever good name his state still has as America's gambling capital, exerted pressure on his boxing commission to withdraw its sanction. This was done.

However, the quick-buck guys who now control Clay, immediately announced that they were switching the site but holding fast to the original date of April 25, three days before Cassius is due to report for induction into the Army—or for imprisonment if he refuses military service. Because of this urgency, action had to be fast. They picked Pittsburgh. One hour later it also was blocked to them. The block was thrown by Raymond P. Shafer, governor of Pennsylvania.

"If it's not good enough for Nevada, it's certainly not good enough for Pennsylvania," said the office of the chief executive of the Keystone State in somewhat supercilious and condescending fashion.

Thus is another chapter supplied to the Keystone comedy series that has been bedeviling Cassius of recent years, though he failed to see any humor in it. His return match with Sonny Liston was chased out by Ernie Terrell who was barred from New York, driven from Chicago and wound up in Toronto with George Chuvalo instead of Terrell as the opponent.

Cassius towers over the field so overwhelmingly that he not only has trouble in excavating foes worthy of his talent but he also has difficulty in finding places to stage his exhibitions of superior skills. Patterson is the same man he toyed with cruelly when they first met and later Clay added to the humiliation by indicating in a television interview that he had carried his rival.

It's a cinch that Patterson, now 32 years old, has not improved even a fraction since then while the swift Clay keeps getting sharper and better. Except for the fact that this rematch would have been a lovely going-away present for Cassius, the bout had no excuse for being scheduled. It's total cancellation is eminently proper.

If nothing else was achieved by the erasure from the calendar of this non-fight, it served to remove the inherent distractions any heavyweight championship bout produces and it permits the focusing of attention on a real fight. This will take place at Madison Square Garden on Monday when Emile Griffith, the middleweight titleholder, defends his crown against Nino Benvenuti or Italy, the European champion.

Among the almost 6,000 athletes quartered at the Villaggio Olimpico in Rome during the 1960 Olympic Games were an Italian welterweight named Nino Benvenuti and an American light heavyweight named Cassius Clay. Although this reporter watched each win an Olympic Championship, he has not the foggiest recollection of Nino but has sharp memories of Cassius, the most charming and personable young man in the Eternal City.

At the end of the boxing tournament the Olympic officials gathered to vote on "The Most Proficient Boxer" in the Games. It wasn't Cassius who won the election. It was Nino, the idol of all Italy. He's still an idol, an exuberant man of 25 who will be making his American debut on Monday against the busy, clever Griffith.

Yet Nino has to have a lot going for him. He won 120 bouts as an amateur and has been a professional long enough to have won 71 of 72 fights. The only loss was to a Korean in Korea and there should be no necessity of having to explain that away.

Griffith has studied films of the Italian in action and rates him as better than Jimmy Archer, a rugged foeman who twice gave Emile considerable trouble.

"Nino is more dangerous than Archer," said the champion. "He seems very strong. How strong he is I'll find out early." The Griffith-Benvenuti fight is an attractive match. That's more than could be said for the non-fight between Clay and Patterson.

EARLY BACKER DECLARES

Goldwater Didn't Really Want to Become President

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Politician F. Clifton White asserts that Barry Goldwater never wanted to be president and ran Motorcycle Death on Erie Street

ERIE — A 28-year-old motorcyclist died in St. Vincent Hospital early yesterday, less than two hours after his motorcycle struck a car at 26th and Hampton sts.
Coroner Merle Wood said John Gregees, 2 614 W. 26th st., died at 12:01 a.m. of internal and head injuries. The coroner ordered an autopsy which was scheduled to be performed yesterday.
According to police, the motorcycle was traveling west when it smashed into a car operated by Ralph Hooven of Erie. Hooven told police he was making a left turn from 28th to a parking area when he heard the motorcycle crash into his car. The accident occurred at 10:15 p.m.
Wood said he would confer with Traffic Sgt. Al Natalie before making a ruling.

SIDNEY MASON: CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

ON HIGHER EDUCATION FOR OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

I should like in this article to engage you in a discussion of higher education for Warren County boys and girls. The high stake we have in the future of every one of our young people compels us to encourage every high school graduate to go on to college.

There was a time when a college education was possible only for the few who could afford it. This is no longer the case, thanks to the presence of Edinboro College in Warren. Out of all proportion to its limited facilities and material resources the Edinboro Off-Campus is doing an excellent job. This Campus, in the absence of a community college, holds great promise for the future of Warren and Warren County. Instead of our boys and girls being denied higher education and training altogether or going away from home in their formative years, after high school, they have the opportunity to remain at home under the continued direction of their parents. This, beside the fact that young boys and girls find living at home more economical and satisfactory.

It has been found that young students perform better during the first year or two if they are not forced to make environmental and social adjustments. In a university with thousands of students the pattern of life is bound to be much more complicated and impersonal. They are lost in an anonymous mass. Many students never have any personal, out-of-class relationship with a large number of their classmates and hardly any of their teachers.

In the smaller college the student is a person, a name, not a number. His teachers take an intimate interest in his present and future welfare. The smaller liberal-arts college is becoming more and more important in the life of our nation. Two professors in Wesleyan University have concluded, after careful research, that the small liberal-arts college is far and away the most productive source of future scientists. And not only this, but of a large number of business executives 71 percent were found to have been graduates of small liberal-arts schools.

At a time when our country is desperate for highly trained men and women it makes sense for us to encourage the expansion of Edinboro College.

Watershed Committee Reports

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — The Chautauqua Lake - Chadakoin River watershed project steering committee Wednesday released a 44-page comprehensive report on the proposed watershed program.

The report will be filed with state and federal agencies today when Curtis H. Bauer, steering committee chairman, and Frank Carmichael, public information director meet with officials in Syracuse and Albany in an effort to obtain approval for the project.

Details of the report indicate that the watershed area comprises about 127,000 acres, all of which are in Chautauqua County, and includes the city of Jamestown and parts of the towns of Ellicott, Ellery, Chautauqua, Stockton, Poland, North Harmony, Sherman, and Busti. Preliminary plans indicate that seven to nine retention dams would be built at an estimated cost of $5.5 million and would impound 31,000 acre-feet of water.

$2.5 million would be available from federal sources, while other funds would come from state and local sources. The purpose of the watershed program is to control the lake level, prevent siltation, and provide an adequate flow of water in the Chadakoin River as well as to enhance the recreational potential of the entire southern Chautauqua County area.

Open Housing Faces Strong State Fight

By HAL COOPER
NEW YORK (AP) — State and city statutes aimed at racial discrimination in housing — a major cause of Negro unrest — faced strong, white opposition from coast to coast yesterday.

Proposed open housing laws already have been beaten back this year in some localities, and an Associated Press survey showed that similar proposals elsewhere are in for a rough trip.

In some areas where anti-discrimination measures have been adopted, opponents are resorting to referendums to knock them out.

The City Commission of Jackson, Mich., passed an ordinance last fall making it illegal to discriminate in the sale or rental of housing on the basis of religion, race, color or national origin. In a referendum last Tuesday, voters voided the measure by a count of 5,826 to 2,886.

In Louisville, Ky., the defeat of an open housing ordinance at a meeting of the board of aldermen Tuesday brought a threat of marches, picketing and sit-ins during Kentucky Derby week next month.

Negro comedian Dick Gregory, who had led demonstrators in favor of the ordinance, declared: "I don't think horses should have more dignity than human beings."

Last month the Maryland general assembly enacted an anti-discrimination law which applies to housing completed after June 1. A group of opponents styling themselves as defenders of state rights said they would petition for a referendum.

In the state of Washington a similar measure has been passed by the legislature and signed by the governor. The

West Germany Secretly Talks with Red Chinese

By DAVID BINDER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BONN — The West German government has been conferring secretly with representatives of the Chinese Communist regime on improving trade.

A knowledgeable source said the negotiations, which have been carried on in Bern, Switzerland, might lead to a form of diplomatic relations, either in terms of an exchange of trade missions or of consulates.

A West German trade mission was reported to be in Peking Saturday, to discuss arrangements for building a $196 million steel rolling mill in China. The project is to be financed by a consortium of German, French and Belgian concerns.

Last week a Soviet government newspaper published a report hinting darkly that a diplomatic deal between Bonn and Peking was in the offing. A West German government spokesman denied the report.

West Germany has become the biggest single European trading partner of Communist China. Recently published statistics showed the volume of exchanges had trebled in the last six years to $113 million in 1966. The bulk was made up by machinery and chemical exports on the West German side and mattress feathers and sausage skins on the Chinese side.

West Germany has a $36 million surplus in the exchanges at the moment.

The Bonn government's involvement with Communist China is being treated with strictest secrecy. This is believed to be part of a complicated diplomatic strategy conceived by the new coalition government headed by chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

Bolling Assuming Demo Leadership

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional ethics and Adam Clayton Powell are giving Rep. Richard Bolling a chance to move into what many consider a void in the House Democratic leadership.

Some liberal Democrats think the leadership, while winning support for President Johnson's program, has been slow to react on organizational questions such as Powell and ethics, preferring what one terms "the status quo."

This has provided an opening for the blunt, outspoken Missouri Democrat, for years one of the most vociferous advocates of congressional reform, to recoup some of the status he lost in recent years.

Bolling, a close adviser of the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, was overwhelmingly defeated by Rep. Carl Albert for the Democratic leadership after Rayburn's death and has become increasingly a lone wolf critic of the way the House handles its affairs.

On ethics, the 50-year-old Bolling resolved an impasse between supporters of a Select Ethics Committee and those who felt the existing House Administration committee should handle the job.

As head of a subcommittee of the Rules Committee, he recognized that there was strong support for an independent committee but there also was opposition to Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., sponsor of the select committee plan and in line to be its chairman.

What Bolling proposed, and

GED Testing Set Tomorrow, Next Saturday

Tests for the General Educational Development certificate, which provides a high school diploma to those not having one, will be given tomorrow and the next Saturday at Edinboro off-campus building at Third and East streets.

Those taking the test must have an approval form from the Department of Public Instruction. Applicants must be prepared to be in the testing area from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. They may bring a thermos of coffee.

The next tests will be given next year. The testing fee is $5.

JCC Opening Student Union Building Today

The student union committee at Jamestown Community College will hold a public grand opening of the new student union building today from 3 to 5:30 p.m. A ribbon-cutting ceremony will take place at 3:30 p.m. with committee members officiating.

The new facility is being housed in the former Cresbury building, 1255 E. Second st. and was sub-leased for this purpose.

Kathryn Jacobson, committee chairman said the community is invited to tour the student union building and be guests of the college for an Open House Coffee Hour slated from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

The former clothing store has about 44,000 square feet of space and will be used for student activities.

The committee decided on the present building for a student union after investigating a number of other possibilities.
